TALK IMPEACHMENT OF M'GOVERN SAYS THE DAILY NEWS?

MILWAUKEE EVENING PAPER SAYS LEGISLATURE IS READY TO ACT.

SENSATIONAL REPORT

That Action Will Be Started This Week Unless Ekern Appeals His Case at Once.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Follow Madison, Feb. 8.—The Milwaukee Daily News says: "There is talk of impeachment proceedings against Governor Francis McGovern growing out of his order for removal from office of Insurance Commissioner Herman L. Ekern and friends of the commissioner are said to be giving such a movement serious consideration. The Daily News credits State Senator Randolph of Manitowoc, a staunch friend of Mr. Ekern, with saying today that he fully expected that an impeachment resolution against the governor would be presented in the assembly next week.

"Assembly friends of Mr. Ekern, according to the News, are said to have declared after the opinion of Judge Stevens was handed down yesterday, that if any attempt were made by Governor McGovern to again use force in removal from office of the insurance commissioner, it would immediately be followed by an impeachment resolution in the assembly. But that body may rest in the matter pending an expected appeal to be taken by Mr. Ekern."

CABINET MEETING IS CALLED FOR MONDAY

President Taft Calls Members Of Official Family Together For Meeting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 8.—President Taft called a special meeting of the cabinet today for next Monday, to discuss his forthcoming message to Congress on the budget system. The president will lay a draft of the message before his advisors.

Opposing forces in the House were arrayed today for the contest over the Webb bill to prohibit shipment of liquor into dry states. The rules committee had prepared a special rule for immediate consideration of the measure with three hours' general debate.

Increased efficiency in the handling of freight cars during the last six months has been "equivalent" to an addition of more than 150,000 freight cars to the equipment of the American railways. This statement is made in a report to Chairman Lane of the interstate commerce commission by Arthur Hale, general agent of the American railways association.

Senators Watson and Hilton of West Virginia, are exonerated on the charge of corruption in connection with the election two years ago, in the report decided upon today by the senate election committee.

SCOUTS TO OBSERVE THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Seven Days Beginning Today, Red Letter Week for Boy Scouts of America.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Feb. 8.—The seven days beginning today will form a red-letter week for the Boy Scouts of America. The week has been set aside for the celebration of the third anniversary of the introduction of the movement into this country. A meeting of the National Council will be held in this city attended by delegates from many states. The observance of the anniversary, however, will not be confined to any one place.

The chief celebrations will be all the scouts of the country, at promptly 9 o'clock, will get together in their respective councils and give the scout salute and repeat the motto and oath of their organization. Greetings from the National Council in session in this city will be read to them.

"The Boy Scouts of America," the name under which the movement in the United States is known, was incorporated three years ago today. Already there are upwards to 300,000 members distributed among 240 local councils in as many cities throughout the United States. The national organization is maintained by public subscriptions. Any boy over 12 years of age is eligible to become a Scout. The movement has adopted itself not only to the wealthy classes, but to the boys of the slums, the newboys and to foreign boys alike. There are many cities now so thoroughly organized that every phase of boy life in the community is being reached by Scout activities.

President William H. Taft is the honorary president of the organization in the United States and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt is the honorary vice president. The active president is Colvin H. Livingstone of Washington, D. C., and the Chief Scout is Ernest Thompson Seton, the famous traveler and naturalist. Among the members of the executive board are such well known men as Mortimer L. Schiff, the New York banker, Prof. Jeremiah Jenks, of Cornell University; Robert Garrett, of Baltimore, and Milton A. McRae of Detroit.

SHERIFF BESIEGED BY ANGRY STRIKERS IN WEST VIRGINIA

Mob of Miners in Mountain Section Attack Sheriff's Posse—May Call Out State Troops.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 8.—Governor Glasscock, adjutant general D. D. Elliott, and other state officers awaited with anxiety today information from Mucklow conlerning the fate of Sheriff Bonner Hill and twenty-five deputies of Kanawha County, reported to be facing an angry mob of striking miners in the little mountain village.

With Sheriff Bonner Hill and his men were Captain Guy Levy and twenty-men and a small party of miner guards, and it is their belief they could maintain their position for an indefinite period. They are armed with modern rifles and rapid fire guns.

Sheriff Hill asked the governor today for troops but at the executive office it was stated that no action would be taken until the details of last night's rioting had been received here. Significance is attached to the fact that two miles from the scene of last night's skirmishing is located one of the largest camps of striking miners and shooting from a train attacked on the Chesapeake and Ohio Ry., during the night was in the direction of this camp.

It was feared that if any of the women and children had been hurt that the sheriff and his men would be unable to restrain the angry men as they outnumbered the posse ten to one and are said to be well armed.

The martial proclamation under which troops were sent into the coal fields last year is still in force. The legislature is in session and it is rumored that the governor would coufer with some of the leaders before acting on the call of Sheriff Hill for troops.

The strike took on a more serious turn soon after noon when Governor Glasscock instructed Adj.-General Elliott to assemble six companies of the national guard and hold them under arms.

The governor today prepared for transmission to the legislature this afternoon a special message detailing the situation in the coal country and asking the legislature to declare martial law. Should the legislature not take action, the governor said today he would order the companies now under arms into the disturbed district.

ANOTHER POLITICAL DRAMA IS ENACTED

Manitowoc Furnishes School Board Sensation of Unusual Bitterness.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Manitowoc, Wis., Feb. 8.—Charged with making political plays when he introduced a dozen or more reforms for the schools to the school board, Judge Isaac Crate, resigned as member of the board after a sensational meeting in which much bitterness was shown against him. In a public statement addressed to the school board Crate alleged that the board keeps its affairs from the public and that he was made the "goat" but in characteristic language calls on the school board to attend his political death and asked them to act as pall bearers.

"Flowers I do not want, prayers, I do not need, but I want your respect." Mr. Crate in a resolution submitted a month ago charged that the schools were extravagant, and inefficient in cmparison with the country schools of a decade or more ago.

BANDIT IN HOLD-UP ON CHICAGO STREET

Score of Passers by Gap as Victim is Relieved of Week's Pay-Roll for Liquor House.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Feb. 8.—A hold up here today was witnessed by a score of passers by which netted two robbers $2,000 from the victim of Morris Nieman and the money taken from his represented the pay roll of a wholesale liquor dealer. The robbery at the point of a pistol required but a few seconds. The crowd stood gaping for a moment and then started chase, but the bandits escaped.

MURDER CONFESSION BY A MISSOURI BOY

Youth Confronted by Identified Blood Finger Prints of His Own Hand and Admits Killing Father.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chillicothe, Mo., Feb. 8.—Confronted by bloody finger prints identified as his own, Lee Loir, 21 years old, admitted the murder of his father, Edward White, a wealthy cattleman in November 1911. According to county prosecutors E. L. Marshall, the elder White's head was crushed with a mattock. The boy said his father had been too severe with him.

WM. ROCKEFELLER IS REPORTED IMPROVED

Recovering from Break Down Suffered While Testifying Before Pujo Committee.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Brunswick, Ga., Feb. 8.—William Rockefeller was reported to be little if any improved this morning after his break down yesterday while being questioned by Chairman Pujo of the House money trust committee.

SENSATIONAL REPORT OF A GREAT VICTORY BY THE BULGARIANS

Not Confirmed by Any Reports Sent Out By Bulgarian War Office as Yet.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Feb. 8.—A sensational report that the Turks suffered a defeat at the hands of the Bulgarian troops in the peninsula of Gallipoli and lost 15,000 killed and 10,000 prisoners which was published in Berlin this morning receives no confirmation or support from any other source today.

It is doubted here whether such a battle could have been fought and such a victory won without the Bulgarian headquarters hastening to officially notify the world.

A telegram received from the Bulgarian capitol this afternoon made no reference to any fighting. It merely mentioned the departure of King Ferdinand for the field.

Montenegro like all the rest of the belligerents in the Bulgarian war is badly in need of funds. The government at Cettje is now trying to place a small short term issue here, but the financiers have barred their doors and resolutely refuse to give any assistance which may prolong the fighting.

General Attack.

Podoritz, Montenegro, Feb. 8.—A general attack by the combined Montenegran and Servian armies opened on the Turkish fortress of Scutari this morning at ten o'clock. King Nicholas of Montenegro is personally directing operations.

Much Secrecy

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—Emperor Nicholas today handed his answer to the autograph letter from Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria to permit Henlohe | Waldenburg Schillings Fuerst to leave this city for Vienna. The greatest secrecy is observed here as to the nature of the Austrian emperor's letter and that of the Russian emperor's reply. The draft of which was submitted to Scurgis Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister at the palace of Tsarsko-Selo yesterday.

PLAN THIRD ATTACK ON ALLEGED TRUST

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 8.—The federal government made its third anti-trust move against the United Shoe Machinery company in a civil suit filed here today charging the so-called combination with wielding an alleged monopolistic power and using unfair trade tactics to force the Keghley company, a competitor, into an unlawful contest, for the leasing, sales and fixing the price of an "inseam trimming machine."

The United States district court here was asked to terminate the contest under which the Keghley company gave the United company the exclusive right to lease the shoe manufacturers the "inseam trimming machine," the patent of which is held by the Keghley company. The effect of the agreement, it is said, is to perpetuate and extend a monopoly on the shoe machinery industry of the United Shoe company of New Jersey. Seven concerns of individuals are made defendants.

RACINE TO TAKE VOTE ON COMMISSION PLAN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Racie, Feb. 8.—Today Mayor Goodland issued a proclamation designating April 1st as the time for the holding of an election to decide whether the city shall be governed under the commission form or continue under the present system with an alderman-ic representative of each ward. The proclamation came as the result of the circulation of petitions and the procuring of the required number of signatures to warrant an election.

In Ashland.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 8.—Mayor Dodd today ordered a special election ten days from date to give the voters a chance to vote on the commission form of government. A year ago the proposition was turned down decisively after a bitter contest.

MOTHER SACRIFICES LIFE FOR HER BABY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 8.—Realizing that she could not escape the wheels of an on-rushing automobile which was coming toward her, Mrs. Harry C. Langmo, 24 years old, threw her eighteen months' baby to the curbing of a down town street today and was herself crushed under the machine. She was fatally injured, but the child was saved. The driver of the auto was arrested.

MAKE CLEVER DUPLICATE OF SAFE MARKED FOR HAUL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Feb. 8.—A safe of painted cardboard, to the eye an exact reproduction of the real safe they planned to rifle, was prepared by burglars who broke into the First avenue saloon early today. The real safe stood under an electric light which was kept burning all night and in full view of the street.

The novice, who made the plan intended to substitute the cardboard safe for the steel and and then blow the real safe unmolested in a dark corner of the saloon. Something frightened them away before they carried out their plans for the police found today that the thieves after bringing in the cardboard safe, they had fled leaving the dummy safe behind them.

SUFFRAGISTS RAID HOT HOUSE GARDENS IN RENEWED FIGHT

Wanton Destruction on Part of Militant London Women is Main Argument in Campaign for Ballot.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Feb. 8.—Militant suffragists destroyed many valuable plants and did other damage reaching a total of $5,000 in the hot houses of the Kew Hot House Gardens during the early hours of this morning. Thus they developed another part of their plan of campaign to force the government to give the vote to women.

It is believed a number of women hid themselves in the gardens over night, for this morning long before the day staff came on duty it was found that a large number of orchids had been uprooted, and scattered in all directions. Thirty panes of glass in the orchid house were broken.

When the night watchmen made their rounds at one o'clock in the morning everything was still in good order and the women must have laid their plans well beforehand in order to find hiding places where they could lie in security. No trace of them has since been found.

The window smashing race continued in London today. Two immense windows in an establishment on Oxford street, which had hitherto been immune because of the proprietors' contribution to the woman's funds, were broken.

The postal authorities today issued a notice that there would be delay on all telegrams to the north of England as the result of the cutting of the telegraph wires in the provinces by the suffragists yesterday.

MISS ELEANOR WISE BECOMES A DUCHESS

Inetrnational Romance Culminated With Ceremony at Cathedral in Baltimore Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 8.—An international romance reached its culmination today in the ceremony at the Cathedral in this city which made Miss Eleanor Douglas Wise, daughter of Mrs. Frederick May Wise, the bride of the Duc de Richelieu, a French nobleman. Cardinal Gibbons officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a wedding breakfast and reception at the Stafford Hotel.

The bride is a member of the Wise family of Virginia. Her father was the late Commander Frederick May Wise, U. S. N., who took part in the civil war and in the boxer uprising in China. He died in Yokohama in 1901.

The Duke is the head of one of the famous families of France. The dukedom of Richelieu was established for Cardinal Richelieu, and at his death passed to his grandnephew, Jean Armand de Vigneret, who was the father of the famous Marshal Duc de Richelieu. The mother of the present Duke was Miss Alice Heine, daughter of Michael Heine, a banker of New Orleans. After the death of the second Duc de Richelieu she became the wife of Prince Albert of Monaco, but was later parted from him by a judicial separation.

COUNCIL IMPEACHES SOCIALIST MEMBER

Eject Alderman From Two Rivers' City Council for Alleged Intimidation of Poor Charges.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Manitowoc, Wis., Feb. 8.—Alex La Fleur, alderman from the first ward in Two Rivers, has been impeached by the city council at Two Rivers and ousted from the office by an unanimous vote. La Fleur is charged with using his official position in an attempt to intimidate poor charges of the city. The principal witness against him was Mrs. Scharwark, whose husband is at the state sanitarium and who was complainant in a criminal action against La Fleur which was settled out of court. La Fleur is a barber and a leader of the socialist party in Two Rivers.

CELEBRATE ARRIVAL OF FIRST CATHOLIC BISHOP IN AMERICA

Cardinal Farley to go to Porto Rico For Anniversary Observances February 23 to 27—Diocese Oldest.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 8.—In order to participate in the 400th anniversary of the creation of the first Catholic Diocese in the New World and the same anniversary of the arrival of the first Catholic Bishop in the Americas, Cardinal Farley of New York and Archbishop Blenk, of New Orleans, who was formerly Bishop of Porto Rico, are among the prelates from the United States who, will come to Porto Rico for the church celebration which will be from February 23 to 27.

Together with Bishop Norris, of Little Rock, Ark., and Bishop Gunn of Natchez, Miss., Cardinal Farley and Archbishop Blenk will sail from New York Saturday, February 15. An invitation has been extended to all Catholic Bishops in the United States to attend the anniversary ceremonies. The last day of the anniversary there will be a public demonstration in connection with the Third Insular Fair.

The Diocese of Porto Rico is the oldest Catholic Diocese in the Americas and was erected by Pope Julius II, in 1511. Bishop Alonso Manso the first bishop to reach the New World discovered by Columbus, reached Porto Rico in 1513. He died in 1539 and his body was buried in the cathedray in San Juan, where the remains of many of the fifty bishops of the diocese have been deposited. This cathedral marks the site of the mother church in the Amarecas, and while much of the present building is modern, parts of it date back to early in 1600.

Cardinal Farley will officiate at the first of the anniversary services, a solemn high mass to be celebrated Sunday morning, February 23. The following day, Monday, Archbishop Blenk will officiate at a special service when the remains on Ponce de Leon, the first Governor of Porto Rico, who died in his quest for the fountain of youth, will be placed in a crypt in an elaborate monument erected in the cathedral.

Many churchmen from other countries are to participate in the anniversary ceremonies, including Cardinal Almarez, of Seville, Spain, who was elevated to the Cardinalate with Cardinal Farley a little more than a year ago; Bishop Estrada of Havana, Cuba; Archbishop Bernada of Santiago, Cuba; Bishop Ruiz of Pinar del Rio, and Bishop Aurelio of Cienfugos, Cuba.

Archbishop Adolfo Nouel of Santo Domingo, who recently was chosen president of that country, has sent word to Bishop Jones of Porto Rico, that his duties as president will prevent him from coming to San Juan. Through one of his priests, President Nouel, who still remains head of the church in Santo Domingo, he has advised Bishop Jones that if he left Dominican soil for eight days there would be another revolutionary outbreak.

None of the dioceses in the United States can compare in age with the Augustine, Fla. It was an established community and had a church in 1565, yet it did not become a diocese until 1870. The first diocese in the United States was that of Baltimore which was created in 1789. New Orleans became the next diocese in 1793, while New York, Boston and Philadelphia were created as sees in 1808, and are the next oldest.

With the coming of this anniversary celebration many interesting bits of church history have been dug up from old records.

As far back as 1538 the high cost of living seems to have been a problem that the first bishop in the Americas reckoned with, for old records show that he ordered prepared a report "on the sin of usury and of buying and selling at inordinate prices." At the same time, records show that "Bishop Manso commanded that a decree be read in the cathedral in San Juan exhorting usurers to go to confession within a certain period of time, that they might receive from the bishop or his viscar-provisor salutary medicine for their spiritual malady. Should any be rebellious, he must be reported."

And only a little later the church records show that there was a sugar tariff that Bishop Rodrigo Bastidas, who succeeded Bishop Manso, thought needed revising so badly that he wrote to the Spanish Crown, saying:

"The new impost upon sugar will cause depression in business, which is already suffering. Let the impost be suppressed." This was in 1544.

In the same letter to the Spanish sovereign Bishop Bastidas wrote:

"It would be convenient to establish in this bishopric a school of grammar."

He reported other affairs in Porto Rico to the Crown indicating a financial depression about that period. He wrote:

"Work on the cathedral has been suspended owing to the scarcity of funds and we beg you to give an alms.

"The employes of the treasury attend, I believe, to their work well, but there is so little to do that four are too many and two would suffice, viz: The treasurer and the auditor.

"I have inspected the Fortaleza and Morro Castle. They are good forts, but there is need of some artillery."

The Fortaleza is the present residence of the governor of Porto Rico, while Morro Castle was one of the fortifications fired on by Admiral Sampson in 1898. It still stands in an excellent state of preservation.

Records recently found give the location of many old crypts under the cathedral in San Juan. One of these proved to be the burial place of Bishop de Solis, who died in 1641. Of this bishop the records say that he entered the priesthood after the death of his wife and that he had "both performed and received all the sacraments of the church." His death followed a pilgrimage through the diocese during which it is recorded he baptized 10,000 Indians.

Old church documents show that the present bishop's palace was purchased in 1738 by Bishop Sebastian Lorenzo Pizarro, who spent 4,000 pesos in repairs."

RUSH FIVE WARSHIPS TO CENTRAL AMERICA

Wart Department Prepares to Meet Any Emergency Which May Arise In Trouble Zone.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Feb. 8.—Preparations for rushing five United States men of war to both coasts of Central America to meet any emergency which may arise from the growing unrest there, went forward with rapidity today. The gunboat Annapolis with a crew of jackies augmented from the South Dakota and Colorado started last night from Santiago, Calif., for Amapala, Honduras, to stand guard on the Pacific side. The Nashville at New York is making ready for sea and is expected to put out for Puerto, Cortex, Honduras on the Atlantic coast early Monday mvorning. The cruiser Des Moines now at Guantamano, the Cuba naval station, coaling, has been ordered to be at Bluefield, Nicauraga, not later than February 15th. The Denver, which has been standing by with distressed Americans threatened by attacks from the rebels at Acupulco, will put out from there in a day or two and drop down to Apajutla, Salvador. It is practically decided that these four ships whose movements were decided upon late yesterday after Washington had received reports of the possible trouble in the Latin republic, will be augmented by the gunboat Tacoma, now at Boston.

From its confidential sources in Central American this government is especially interested in preserving peace among the Latin republic and has been receiving ominous and speculative reports of juntas of deposed dictators and revolutionists' meetings here and there plotting to stir up trouble. While the presence of American war ships would be principally intended to provide refuge for Americans and other foreign citizens there is doubt if the situation arises paralleling that in Nicauragn in the recent revolution when American troops were called upon to open a railway and open angage rebels in battle.

Salvador Trouble.

New Orleans, Feb 8.—Charging that the recent attempted assassination of President Araujo of Salvador was the work of paid assassins sent from Guatemala City where the plot is alleged to have been hatched were denied today by Angel Pena who declared that the charge comes from enemies of President Cabreia in New Orleans. Sr. Tena declares unfounded the rumors that the President was interested in plans to effect a change in the executive plans of Salvador. From sources close to the governor of Salvador it was learned that relations between the two presidents have not been friendly for several months.

President Better.

San Salvador, Feb. 8.—The President of Salvador, Dr. Manuel Eraujo, is now out of danger from the effects of the attack made on him February 4th by a would-be assassin.

PLANS TO PUSH THE GRAFTING INQUIRIES

Police Commissioner Waldo Will go To The Bottom of Disclosures Of Gamblers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Police Commissioner Waldo today took up the lead opened by aldermanic investigation of police graft and began investigation of charges made by James Purcell a veteran gambler against four captains now on the force. On the strength of Purcell's unsupported story said Waldo he ould do nothing, but if his investigations corroborated the gambler's charges, he would suspend accused officers.

THIRTEEN MEN ARE CRUSHED TO DEATH

Snapping of Chain Holding Huge Bucket of Water Kills Miners at Bottom of Shaft.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mansfield, England, Feb. 8.—Thirteen men were killed and a number of others injured today at the Bolsover colliery by the snapping of a chain through which hung a bucket containing 800 gallons of water. The bucket crashed from the 500 foot shaft at the bottom of which the men were working. The workmen were crushed into an unrecognizable mass. Only a few who happened to be in the shafter holes at the side of the shaft escaped death.

TO REMOVE CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE AS DEFENSE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 8.—A measure containing a number of midifications to the workmen's compensation act will be presented to the legislature next week by the committee on labor. The measure will adopt the principle of two measures already introduced. It will wipe out contributory negligence as a defense in personal injury cases and will change the form of election so that all employers are considered under the law for one year unless they elect to stay out. This will compel the employer to take affirmative action.

The measure has been drafted by Charles H. Crownhart, chairman of th industrial commission, after a conference with many manufacturers.

M'GOVERN PLANNING A COUPE ON EKERN?

RUMORED AT CAPITOL THAT GOVERNOR WILL INSTALL ANDERSON AS COMMISSIONER DURING NIGHT.

WOULD TURN TABLES

Seeks to Place Burden of Litigation On Ekern's Shoulders—Aylward May Take an Appeal on Injunction.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 8.—It is rumored at the state house toay that Governor McGovern is planning a coupe on Herman L. Ekern by installing Louis Anderson in office during the night. This, it is said, will tend to place the burden of litigation on Ekern to secure possession of the office.

To Decide on Form.

Circuit Judge E Ray Stevens announced that this afternoon at two o'clock he will meet with Attorney H. L. Butler, representing Governor McGovern, and Attorneys John A. Aylward and Michael B. Olbrich, to determine upon the proper form of the order denying the application for an injunction in the Ekern case. As required by the decision, Attorney Butler submitted a tentative form of order to the opposing counsel. Much will depend upon the actual form of the order to be issued.

Meantime the restraining order remains in effect, and in case of an appeal to the supreme court by Ekern's attorneys, it may be stipulated that the order remain in effect until the matter has been passed upon by the supreme court. State cases take precedence on the supreme court's calendar, but even this proceeding would require from four to eight weeks before the court would be able to hear the case. Early today Attorney John A. Aylward declined to state whether he would take an appeal for his client. It is believed that if he secures an order suitable to his demands, no appeal will be taken.

An Appeal Probable.

There are other evidences, however, which indicate that Ekern's attorneys have determined that the matter of the injunction shall be passed upon by the supreme court. This will only determine a legal point, however, and the merits of the case will either have to be tested simultaneously with the injunction hearing, or later by quo warranto proceedings.

In denying the injunction applicatios yesterday, Judge Stevens said that "the case comes within the rule of Ward vs. Sweeney. Under the rule in that case the court cannot determine the validity or the effect of the order of removal. If an appeal is taken, it will probably be upon the rule laid in the South Milwaukee case, in which an alderman asked for an injunction to restrain another alderman from occupying his place in the council. The injunction was denied in that case by a divide court, with three justices for and two against. Chief Justice Winslow and Justice Marshall are the only present members of the court who passed upon that case. Justices Marshall and Bardeen wrote vigorous dissenting opinions at that time. Marshall declaring that he had serious doubts "as to the correctness of the decision rendered in this case, and dissent upon some of the reasoning upon which it is based.

Dissenting Opinions.

"The danger to public as well as to private interests from allowing claimants to public offices to forcibly intrude themselves into he same or to exercise the duties of a position in de facto offices already in such position es very great and should be prevented in every practicable way," declared Judge Marshall in the opinions noted. "The injunction remedy to that end should be used freely, for there is a clear case calling for it. It is the only remedy that can be resorted to compel a determination of the right to the office under such circumstances by peaceful methods."

In the same case Justice Bardeen declared that insofar as the decision in the case attempted to limit the power of a court of equity "to protect a de facto officer from injunction, I think it runs counter to the great weight of authority."

It is understood that if an appeal is made, Attorney Aylward will attempt to have the supreme court upset the doctrine laid down by the majority of the court in the case named, and adopt the views then pronounced by Justices Marshall and Bardeen.

FAMOUS BRITISH SOLDIER SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Feb. 8.—Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, famous as one of the "fighting machines" of the British Empire, is receiving congratulations in anticipation of his seventy-fifth birthday anniversay tomorrow. Few men living today have had such a wide experience in military affairs as Sir Evelyn. He has served in both the navy and army, with the cavalry and infantry. He has filled all the regimental grades and served in nearly every kind of staff appointment. He began life as a midshipman in the navy and fought at Inkerman and in the attack on the Redan. During the mutiny in India he was on the firing line all the time. Afterward he saw service in Africa, then returned to England and fitted himself for a position on the general staff of the army. Despite his seventy-five years the veteran soldier is still alert and active. Only a few days ago he had a narrow escape in the hunting field. His horse jumped short at a fence and was impaled on a stake, but Sir Evelyn kept his seat. Seeing that the horse's condition was hopeless, his rider bought a gun and shot the animal.

TO TRAIN TEACHERS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL

Class Organized in City As Result of Recent Sunday School Convention—To Meet Weekly.

Opportunity for systematic instruction and training in methods is offered the Sunday school teachers of Janesville through the organization of a class to be taught by men and women with practical experience in their respective fields. This class, which will hold its first meeting at the Baptist church on the evening of February 17 at 7:30 o'clock, is an outgrowth of the Sunday school convention recently held in this city. It will be open to the Sunday school teachers of all the Protestant churches and hold meetings every Monday evening. The first half hour will be given up to instruction in the principles of teaching by Prof. H. C. Buell of the high school, and the rest of the evening will be devoted to section work. Miss Jacobs will have charge of the kindergarten and primary section; Miss Mary Buckmaster, the junior section; Mrs. Bertha Hall, the intermediate department; and the Rev. Dr. David Beaton, pastor of the Congregational church, will conduct the adult department. For the first month all the meetings will be held at the Presbyterian church. An executive committee consisting of the Rev. J. W. Laughlin, the Rev. J. C. Hazen, and Mr. Bennison took the initiative in the organization of the class and are in general superintendence.

JEFFERSON SCHOOL CHILDREN EXAMINED

Visiting Nurse Making Inspections There—Obtaining Record of Condition of Each Pupil.

The city visiting nurse is now making a medical inspection of the pupils of the Jefferson school. This is the fifth school to be examined thus far, inspections having been completed in the Lincoln and the Garfield schools, the high school and St. Patrick's parochial school. The nurse is obtaining a record of the physical condition of each pupil, and these records will be used as a basis for more particularized work. After they have been completed the nurse will visit each school twice a week for the purpose of keeping in touch with those pupils who are in need of especial attention, giving them instruction as to the treatment of their ailments. Where the nurse finds pupils to be neglectful or neglected as to personal cleanliness, or afflicted with pediculocis, cards will be sent by them to their parents instructing them that unless the children are properly cared for within a certain time they can not return to school. The nurse reports that there is very little contagious disease in the city at the present time with the exception that tuberculosis seems to be increasing.

OBITUARY.

Miss Minnie C. Smith.

The funeral of Miss Minnie C. Smith was held from Trinity church at ten o'clock this morning. The Rev. Father Henry Willmann read the Episcopal burial service. The pall-bearers, all vestrymen of Trinity church, were James G. Gregory, Sr., Harry E. Ranous, Harry Garbutt, H. V. Allen, John Tipney, and Ernest Kneip. A large number of the members of Trinity parish as well as of friends of the departed from outside the parish, were present at the funeral, and the floral offerings were of great beauty. The remains were tenderly laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Maria Flannigan.

Mrs. Maria Flannigan, wife of Michael Flannigan, 121 South Academy street, died at Mercy hospital at 6:30 o'clock last evening. She leaves besides her husband, three children, two daughters and son son, Mary and Anna, and Michael Flannigan, Jr., all of this city. She also leves to mourn her loss a sister, Mrs. Thatcher of Milwaukee; four brothers, John McCue of Milwaukee, Patrick and Michael McCue of this city, and a brother in Ireland. Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock next Monday morning. Interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Stanley Duoss.

Funeral services for Stanley Duoss, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Duoss, 1217 Racine street, who met a painful death yesterday afternoon as the result of being scalded to death by the overturning of a pail of boiling water, will be held from the home at two o'clock Monday afternoon and at the Norwegian Lutheran church at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. W. A. Johnson will officiate. Little Stanley leaves to mourn his unexpected and terrible death his grief stricken parents and two sisters, who were his fond playmates, the oldest being five years of age. The bereaved family have the sympathy of all who learned of the tragedy.

Mrs. William Cooke.

Mrs. William Cooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Case, formerly of this city, died at her home in Chicago last evening. Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss her aged parents; one daughter, Mrs. Fishleigh; and two sons: Clifford, aged 16; and Harold, aged 14 years.

REVENUE FROM CARP TO DEEPEN RIVERS

Launch Owners Will Be Interested in Plan to Utilize Bonus from Fishermen.

There is a bill in process of construction at Madison to use the money derived from the carp fishers to deepen the river channels of the streams around the state and make them navigable. Senator Cunningham of Beloit has the project in hand and writes that he would be glad to have the views of the Janesville boat owners on the subject. Former Governor Davidson is behind the movement and it is aimed directly to affect Lake Kegonsa where he has a summer home. Janesville members of the summer colony at this lake will also be interested in the project.

PLUMBERS' UNION ELECT NEW OFFICERS

Interesting Session Held Last Even—Reports of Delegations at State Convention Given.

The Janesville Plumbers' Association met last night to transact business and elect officers for the coming year. They had an elaborate banquet in their hall. The members are well satisfied with their work, the union being in a most prosperous condition. The local union was also pleased with the outcome of the election of officers of the Journeymen Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters' association, having two of their members, George Slightham and Fred J. Schmitt, being local men, so honored. These two men made a detailed report on the business that was transacted at the Racine meeting. They expressed themselves confident that the bill for inspecting the plumbing, will be passed by the legislature in the near future. They were fully confident that this governing body would see the benefits of such a law.

The officers that were elected are as follows:

President—A. P. Jerg.
Vice president—A. H. Fuchs.
Secretary—T. J. Schmidt.
Treasurer—J. Allen.
Seargent-at-arms—H. Green.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

The training school gave a reception Tuesday evening in honor of Miss Burdick, the new teacher. The following program was carried out successfully:

Piano Solo—Alice Cullen.
Talk—Principal Lowth.
Vocal Solo—Margaret Cullen.
Recitation—Nora McCarthy.
Piano Solo—Harriet Conners.
Chorus—Margaret Kelly, Lydia Sommerfeldt, Hazel Logan, Florence Bradford, Alice Lowery, Esther Barnum.
Remarks—Superintendent Antisdel.
Song by the school.
Refreshments.
Amusements.

The committee on arrangements consisted of Ella Jacobson, Margaret Vickerman, Margaret Mawhiney, Minnie Milbrandt and Lydia Sommerfelt. Margaret Vickerman acted in the capacity of presiding officer.

Principal Lowth is sending out a circular letter to twenty country teachers concerning the matter of school gardens. Seeds have been sent from the department of agriculture and it is expected that some good gardens will be made this spring.

Miss Alice M. O'Malley, representing the American book company, gave our seniors some good ideas the forepart of the week in the matter of teaching primary reading. Miss O'Malley conducted class exercises in the first and second grades.

Mrs. (Dr.) Burdick visited at the training school Thursday afternoon.

Edna Loomis is out of school sick with the mumps.

Miss Hickey and Alice Cullen favored the Philomathea society with some excellent instrumental music at the last program.

The student-teachers are getting nicely started in their practice work in the grades.

Principal Lowth spent last Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Madison at educational gatherings.

Part of the training school instructors will attend the teachers' convention in Madison next week.

New blackboards and kindergarten chairs have been received for use in the rooms where practice teaching is done. There is now a good equipment for practice-teaching.

A new filing case has been received and various clippings are being sorted and properly classified for ready reference. This will be of great service to teachers and students.

Alice Cullen read a very good paper at the last rhetoricals, describing her western trip last summer to various points of interest.

The Arithmetic class is using a little book on "Test Yourself in Arithmetic" with much profit.

The new training school instructor, Miss Grace E. Burdick, is proving herself well adapted to the needs in this type of school, and is of great help in keeping up the work.

A Lincoln program is scheduled for next week Wednesday, Lincoln's birthday.

The rural school problem is not by any means a simple problem, and it cannot be solved by any simple method. The rural school problem is a part of the great country life problem which we are facing in America today. The essence of the country life problem is doubtless this: To keep upon our farms a class of people who will represent true American ideals, socially, politically and otherwise. This is a great national interest. There is a strong tendency towards the cities and towns. This must be checked. The country life must be made attractive. How can it be done? That's the question.

Winter in Manitoba: Frank H. Snyder, formerly of Janesville, but now located at Ste. Rose du Lac, Manitoba, Canada, writes to B. H. Baldwin that the winter has been typically severe in that section. There has been an abundance of snow and the temperature averages from ten to forty degrees below zero. On two mornings the mercury registered fifty-two below zero.

ANNOUNCE A SERIES OF SEVEN LECTURES

Rev. Father A. O. Welsh of Paulist Order, Chicago, Will Speak Under Auspices of K. C. Lodge.

Carroll Council, No. 596, Knights of Columbus, announce a series of seven lectures which will be given at the Myers theatre beginning Monday evening, Feb. 10, by the Rev. Father A. O. Welsh of the Paulist order, Chicago.

The aim of the meetings will be to make a clear exposition of the teachings of the Catholic faith in the interest of fairness and Christian charity. There will be no effort to stir up controversy and non-Catholics are urged to attend.

Questions bearing on doctrines or practices of the Catholic church may be left in the question box at the door and will be answered from the platform. The following list of subjects are announced for the week:

Monday, February 10—"God and Man."
Tuesday, February 11—"To Christ God."
Wednesday, February 12—"The Church and Bible."
Thursday, February 13—"Lord's Supper."
Friday, February 14—"The Catholic Confessional."
Saturday, February 15—"The Christian Home and Divorce."
Sunday, February 16—"Why I am a Catholic."

ANNUAL MEETING ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Election of Officers and Banquet of Commercial Club Comes on February 12th.

On Wednesday next, the annual election and banquet of the Commercial club will be held at the Hotel Myers. The committee having charge of the banquet have seen as many members as possible, but ask those who have been overlooked to notify Secretary Lane if they intend to be present at the meeting. Covers for seventy-five have already been ordered.

CHANGE TIME OF PAYMENT OF SOLDIER RELIEF MONEY

Orders Will Be Drawn Quarterly Hereafter Instead of Every Two Months.

At a meeting of the soldiers' relief committee, composed of Simon Smith, Beloit; A. C. Gray, Evansville; and L. M. Nelson, Janesville; at the court house today, it was decided to draw the orders for applicants for relief funds once every quarter instead of every two months, as has been the practice formerly. Orders issued on Feb. 20 will be drawn for three months including February, March and April. The next quarterly meeting will be held on May 20. This arrangement will allow the committee to make a settlement for the January meeting instead of the November meeting of the county board.

Story Hour Popular: Sitxy children attended the weekly story hour at the public library this morning. ## CHURCH TO OBSERVE TENTH ANNIVERSARY

St. Peter's English Lutheran Church Plans Speical Services For Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Special services Sunday morning and evening and on Monday and Tuesday evenigs of next week have been planned by the St Peter's Eglish Lutheran congregation as a celebration of the tenth anniversary of their organization in this city.

The Rev. W. P. Christie of La Crosse, first pastor of the church, will preach the sermon at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning. This will be in the nature of an anniversary sermon and the audience room of the church will doubtless be filled by members and friends.

Sunday evening at seven-thirty the address will be given by the Rev. Paul H. Roth of Beloit on the subject, "The Hand That Builds."

Another service is arranged for Monday evening at which Dr. W. K. Frick of Milwaukee, who dedicated the local church and was instrumental in its founding, will give the address on, "The Growth and Development of the English Lutheran Church in Wisconsin." This service will also be at seven-thirty.

On Tuesday a reception will be held in the lecture room of the church and the Rev. A. C. Anda of Chicago, another clergyman who was interested in the foundation of the local church will give an informal address. The Rev. A. F. Elmquist Ph. D. of Minneapolis, president of the synod of the northwest to which the local church belongs, will also be present and will make a few remarks.

The series of services will mark an epoch in the history of the church. Special music is planned for all of the meetings.

Your spine is out of line when you're sick; supple, willowy spines throw off disease and keep all parts of your body healthful and active. Notice the illustration at point marked No. 3. It shows a subluxated vertebra of the spine. This vertebra being out of place presses and squeezes the nerve that branches off from the main spinal cord at point marked 2nd opening. When this impingement occurs the nerve force that flows to the other end of the nerve is shut off and the part depending on this particular nerve for nourishment is in time weakened and diseased. Chiropractic, the science of spines, will remove the pressure caused by the subluxated vertebra and Nature, through nerve force, restores the weakened part. Don't be sick longer. JT'S UP to Rube Marquard of the Giants to break a contract in the near future. He has agreed to play ball this coming season, but he has booked vaudeville engagements until May 15, which is nearly three months after the start of the spring training season. If he keeps bad faith with McGraw he will get a poor standing in baseball; if he breaks his theatrical engagements he will be in bad with theatrical managers. His present position is not one to cause Rube joyous peals of laughter, when he stops to think about it.

MARTY CUTLER tells a story of two English boxers who were fighting one night in Canada. One of the men, who wanted to quit awfully bad, would grunt every time he got a little punch in the stomach. Finally he refused to go any further and called to his seconds to put the chair in his corner. The referee rushed over to where he was sitting and said: "What's the matter with you—ain't you going to fight any more?"

"Fight any more!" groaned the Englishman, clutching at his stomach. "'Ow can I fight when I'm bloody well knocked out?"

The most remarkable thing about the Finn is that he is "self-made" in every respect. Never having been advised by a competent coach, Hannes has developed himself.

Christy Mathewson.

A study of the records of big league pitchers during the past 12 years shows that Christy Mathewson leads all the rest. In the matter of control he is well ahead of his nearest rivals—"Chief" Bender, Ed Walsh, Addie Joss, Mordecai Brown and Walter Johnson. His pitching average since he entered big league baseball has been a little above .700. In the matter of allowing few hits his record has been excelled by but one pitcher, "Rube" Waddell.

DEFEAT MILWAUKEE IN FAST POLO GAME

Janesville Team's Victory on Friday Night Places it in Front Rank of the League.

The Janesville Moose Roller Polo team boosted themselves into the top division when they defeated the Milwaukee team, by the score of 4 to 2 at the rink last night. The game was the best that has been played so far and the spectators were well pleased at Janesville's wonderful playing. Milwaukee wanted to win this game and two of her players very closely resembled the star center and second rush of the Racine team, whom the locals defeated last week.

The entire Janesville team played excellent games and every man put forth his best effort to win. Kilmer's work was especially brilliant, for his dodging and accurate shooting enabled him to cage all four of the local's goals. Langdon made several fine stops and is developing into the best goal tender of the league. Blakely showed up well in the team work and had numerous chances to score, but seemed to lack force in walloping the ball past Milwaukee's halfback. Shaffer and Conley played steady games, the latter breaking up his rival's advances toward the goal.

Milwaukee had plenty of "pep" during the game and with their added strength presented a formidable foe. Their halfback, MacDonald, was the best half that has been seen at the rink this year. The Milwaukee team were all fast skaters and know the game well. They represented the big Elite rink of the Cream City.

First Third: The game at this period was very fast for neither team could score, although Janesville had the ball in their rival's territory the majority of the time, but lacked the force to put the ball past MacDonald. This third was rough and both sides took numerous spills.

Second Third: Milwaukee started with a rush but Janesville took the speed out of them when Kilmer took the ball up the floor and made the first score of the game. Kilmer also secured another by a hard angle shot. Janesville had plenty of good chances to score but failed at the critical moment.

Last Third: This half was the most interesting of the game for Milwaukee came back strong and threw a scare into the locals. They advanced the ball down the floor and in a scrimmage in which members of both teams bunched together, and in the confusion of swinging clubs and kicking feet, Milwaukee scored her first goal. Greatly encouraged the Elite team scored another goal in the same manner. The Janesville rooters were relieved when Captain Kilmer scored his fourth goal.

The attendance at the game was large and enthusiasm was high. This game has added confidence and the locals hope to defeat the Kenosha team on the return game here next Friday night.

Summary:

Milwaukee Elite team: Thompson, first rush; Dooby, second rush; Delaney, center; Mac Donald, halfback; Bowman, goal.

Janesville: Kilmer, first rush; Blakely, second rush; Shaffer, center; Conley, halfback; Langdon, goal.

Goals: Kilmer, 4; Delaney and Mac Donald, 1.

Time of thirds: 10-10-15.

Referee—Roddy Enright.

BELOIT TEAM GIVES LITTLE OPPOSITION TO LOCAL PLAYERS

Janesville Five Piles Up 53 to 10 Score In Determined Fight on Local Floor Friday Night.

(By Scoop)

Beloit high school's basketball team was forced to bow to the superior playing of their Janesville rivals on the local floor last night by the one-sided score of 53 to 10. The game was witnessed by an enthusiastic crowd of over 600 fans. Beloit had chartered a special car, but owing to some Senior reproduction in the Line City, it was necessary to cancel the order and only about forty Beloit fans were at the game.

There were plenty of thrills, and the locals took their opponents completely off their feet, outplaying them at all stages of the game. Beloit has, however, a fast and aggressive team, and much credit must be given them for holding the locals in the manner in which they did. They played better ball than Stoughton, but the decided improvement of the Janesville players tells the story for the high score. At all points of the game, the locals were safely superior and their opponents were only able to secure 4 points in the first half.

At the start of the game, Edler rushed up the floor and registered the first goal from the field. Hemming soon followed with a long shot. Hemming at once added two more, and then Dalton repeated the same stunt. Edler also added one in before Beloit received a point. Then Connell secured a long shot with no one guarding him. It was a pretty throw. Hemming closed the half with four more baskets and a free throw, while Edler added another, ending the half, with the locals leading by a 25 to 4 score.

In the second half, the locals for fear of an attack from Beloit, began with the same style as in the first half. Edler was the first to score, and Ryan soon followed. Hemming secured four more in this half, and wore out two centers. Edler was high man with five baskets. Dalton Stewart and Falter each added a basket finishing the game with the locals at the top of the score, the final figures being 53 to 10.

The loss of Awood was not seriously noticed owing to the fact that the game was a walk-away. With his presence in the lineup the score would have been much greater for he is a fast player and a sure shot. Against the Beloit guards he would have easily added to the score.

The lineup was as follows:

Janesville—Ryan and L. Stewart, l. f; Dalton, r. f; Hemming center; Edler, l. g; Capt. Falter and Kuhlow r. g.

Beloit—Capt. Connell, l. f; R. Connell and Dame, r. f; Ross and Bredsor centers; W. Van Lone, l. g; R. Van Lone, r. g.

Baskets—Hemming, 11; Edler, 9; Dalton, 3; Falter, L. Stewart, Ryan, R. Connell, Connell, 2. Free throws—Hemming, 1; Connell 4.

Notes of the Game.

Kuhlow and Stewart played whirlwind games during the last three minutes. These two subs were given a chance toward the close of the game and it is safe to say that they could have played them at least half of the game, and have won by a good margin.

Hemming, not only wore out two centers, but secured 23 points for his team. He played a great game.

The game was featured by fine team work, and accurate passes.

Ryan played his first game of the season at forward, taking Awood's place. His improvemen was readily seen, and he displayed in fine fashion.

Cornell was he scoring machine for Beloit, he alone securing 8 of the 10 points for Beloit.

Falter and Edler did great guarding work. This is seen by Beloit's low score. Falter repeatedly broke up the opposing team-work and with Edler were not slow in advancing the ball out of dangerous territory.

Next Friday night, the locals will play at Jefferson. Stoughton played Jefferson and defeated them, while the locals defeated the Stoughton five. However, the locals are going to be on the watch for fear of a defeat.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Playing baseball on January 31 on the campus at Tufts College is a knockout for Old Man Winter.

The University of Pennsylvania baseball nine will perhaps take a trip to Cuba after the regular college season.

The Philadelphia Nationals are trying to obtain Catcher Dan Howley, who caught for the Portland, Ore., team last season.

Shortstop Chapman, who went to Cleveland from Toledo the latter part of last season, is expected to do big things with the Naps next season.

Even if Jim Thorpe doesn't quite measure up to major league standards as a ball player he will certainly be a big drawing card for the Giants.

Bill Lange, the famous outfielder with the Cubs in the 90's, will help coach the White Sox during the team's training season in California.

One of Johnny Evers' aims this year will be to make a base stealer out of Vic Saier. Vic is a fast man on the paths, but fails to take full advantage of his speed.

Pitcher "Rube" Boehler, a Detroit recruit from the Newark, O., team, is under quarantine in his home at Lawrenceburg, Ind., with a severe attack of smallpox.

Hugh Duffy, the former Chicago and Milwaukee manager, has purchased the Fall River, franchise in the New England league and will probably transfer the team to Portland, Me.

March 7 is the latest date that has been named for the proposed bout between Packey McFarland and Jack Britton.

DINNER STORIES

The class at kirk had been reading the story of Joseph and his brthern, and it came the turn of the visiting minister to examine the lads. The replies to all his questions had been quick, intelligent and correct. Such as: "What great crime did these sons of Jacob commit?" "They sold their brother Joseph." "Quite correct. And for how much?" "Twenty pieces o' siller." "And what added to the cruelty and wickedness of these bad brothers?" (No answer.) "What made their treachery even more detestable and heinous?" Then a bright little fellow stretched out an eager hand. "Well, my little man?" "Please sir, they sellt him too cheap!"

Appropriate to the home rule question, a newly published volume of biography gives a story of Mr. Gladstone and the then bishop of Peterborough, the famous Dr. Magee. The two were dining together, and Dr. Magee, in the course of conversation, made it plain that he thought the government was not acting straightforwardly. "I am afraid, Dr. Magee," Mr. Gladstone remarked, "that, Irishman as you are, you do not approve of our method of dealing with Ireland." "It's not your dealing that I don't like," the bishop retorted, "so much as your shuffling!"

A man, driven home on a very wet night, wished to give the cab-driver something to keep the cold out. Finding nothing at hand but a liquor stand with its tiny glasses, he filled up one and handed it to Jehu, remarking: "You'll think none the worse of this because it was made by the holy monks." "God bless the holy monks!" exclaimed the driver as he drained the glass. "It's thimselves that can make good liquor, but the man that blew that glass was very short of breath."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

When I get through reforming myself,
When I've patched up the flaws that I own;
When I've ceased to struggle for pelf,
And bear all my burdens alone,
When there isn't a mote in my eye
And I do everything I should do,
Then perhaps I may start in to try
Reforming my neighbor and you.

When I've cleaned up the follow called Me,
When I've dusted the webs from my brain,
When I'm all that my neighbor should be,
When no one has cause to complain
That I'm selfish and thoughtless, and when
I ne'er step aside from the true,
When I've no weaknesses ,then
I may come reforming to you.

When I am so strong I can stand
All the tests that temptation may give,
When I have myself in command
So that simply and purely I live;
When nothing unfair or unkind
Marks my path, when I've nothing to rue
Then I may, if the time I can find,
Try reforming my neighbor and you.
—Detroit Free Press.

In this age of reform, when the most of us are as busy as bees, looking after our neighbors' business, it may not be amiss to take a few moments off to consider the suggestions offered in this homely little poem.

There never was a time in the history of the country when the people generally were so much interested in other people's affairs, as they are today, and this interest is usually more critical than kindly.

This interest finds expression through investigations by the federal and state governments, and through the enforcement of inquisitorial laws, which invade the privacy of all kinds of business and make a football of secrets which have long been considered sacred.

From an age of conservative secretion, we have passed to an era of the broadest publicity ,and with it has developed all sorts of criticism, from all kinds of critics.

In another part of the paper will be found Ellis B. Usher's weekly letter, which is well worth reading because it contains a vivid word picture of conditions which exist because of undue interest in other people's business.

What Mr. Usher says about money, is true to the letter. You can't compel it to do anything. When railroad properties and securities are weakened through over-regulation, the great tide of money, which usually flows into this channel, is diverted, and in seeking a safe and profitable outlet, it enters commercial channels, and becomes a competitor, in a field already overburdened.

The Woolworth building, just completed in New York, at a cost of thirteen and a half million dollars, is a monument to the corporation with a capital of sixty-five million dollars, invested in five and ten cent stores, scattered all over the country.

The United cigar stores, the Rockefeller groceries, the great department and mail order houses, are furnished with great blocks of capital by men who, under normal conditions, would invest their surplus in stocks and bonds, where it is needed to help along the great enterprises.

In our zeal to reform everything in sight, we have destroyed confidence, and the chickens are coming home to roost.

The government is making a great ado about protecting the under dog. Monopolies must go, to give the small competitor a chance for his life. The incoming president says that his great concern is for the men who are in the making, and not for the men who are made.

The theory is as fine-spun as the free trade and free silver theory, but there's nothing to it, because there is no sentiment in business, and no amount of regulation can create it. The men who shout "Down with monopoly," the strongest, are usually the most liberal patrons of mail order houses.

There are so many holes in the skimmer that capital leaks out, while the work of regulation is going on, and the "under dog" wakes up some morning to meet it face to face as a full-fledged competitor, on his own domain.

The Kellogg Corn Flake company of Battle Creek, Mich., is the latest victim of government regulation. The company has long maintained the right to fix the retail price for its goods, and refuses to sell to customers who cut the price.

No complaint to this one price system has ever been offered by customers, but the government scents a monopoly, and suit is brought to determine whether or not it is in violation of the Sherman law. The sentiment expressed in the following letter from Emporia, Kansas, will be generally endorsed.

"Gentlemen: I see by the press that you are being sued by this great Government of ours for one big son-of-a-gun for keeping the price of your Toasted Corn Flakes where it belongs.

"It's meself that's hoping you'll beat the Government good and hard with a wet-elm club. It seems like this grand Government wants to protect the fool price-cutter by giving him a chance to bust himself.

"Some of these wise guys what never done a lick of hard work unless it was beating down the price of their rich washerwoman. Still they know all about how people should run their business and protect their rights. I know you have the sand in your craw and the dough in the bank to fight this glorious old Government to a finish. So I'll be a-hollerin' hoop-er-up Kelly-'logg' and selling Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes for *15 cents the trow.

Yours for a winner,
A. C. IRELAND."

Prosecution and persecution are sometimes closely allied, in the regulating business, and they seem to be a little mixed in this case.

* * *

The era of regulation will have its day, and in time we will settle down to normal conditions, but the time will never come when we can afford to give up the battle, which every thoughtful mind fights with itself, for the mastery of self-control.

It is so much easier to discuss regulation for other people than to settle down to a little heart to heart talk with ourselves, along the line of self-regulation, that many of us work over-time, at the former, and sadly neglect the latter.

The average mind is not given to introspection, but the average tongue exceeds the speed limit, in discussing what other people ought to do, and the buzz of many voices, stimulated by agitators and muckrake writers, is so confusing, that it is often difficult to decide whether anything, outside the realm of nature, is properly regulated.

While it is true that in a sense we are our brother's keeper, the good Lord, who gave us the suggestion, never intended that we should devote all our time to Him. This is being done today, to such large extent, that individual life is sadly neglected.

The forces of evil are active enough in every life, to command attention, not only on Sunday, but every day of the week, and when the forces of righteousness are fully aroused, the conflict becomes so vigorous, as well as so interesting, that criticism is lost in the shuffle, and when victory is won, charity takes possession of the citadel and the outlook becomes more cheerful.

The man who is master of himself is always a good citizen. This self-mastery includes more than the ability to keep sober, for a man may be a radical prohibitionist and so mean that his wife can't live with him.

He may be a shouter in the synagogue and profess sanctification, and still not enjoy the confidence of the people who know him best. He may be so honest that his word is better than his note, and so shiftless that his next meal depends upon the wife and the wash tub.

The man who masters himself is more than a professor. When the work is complete he becomes a possesser of the many graces of mind and heart which contribute to a well-rounded character.

Among his rarest possessions is a broad and kindly charity, which suffers long and is kind. The spirit of envy and criticism, fades away like the morning dew, and the best side of humanity becomes attractive.

What we need as a people today, is more forbearance, and less criticism. A desire to help build up rather than to regulate. A constructive, and not a destructive policy. And these graces we may attain through self-control.

SCRIPTURE

Psalm 1:1-6.

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful.

But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night.

And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper.

The ungodly are not so; but are like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

Therefore the ungodly shall not stand in the judgment, nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous.

For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Let me forget these pajamas so tight.
These new fangled 'jamas with pluckerin' string.
The old flannel nightgown-ah, that was the thing.

It will be noted that in the above list we have made no allowance for amusements. Those desiring amusement of a cheap yet clean order can find it in counting up what they have left of their salaries.

Elihu Purdy, our druggist, says if there was an eighth of a cent profit in postage stamps he would have been a rich man a long time ago. His average customer nowadays buys a 2-cent stamp, soaks a dollar's worth of heat, eats 15 cents worth of candy off the trays and then borrows a pen, ink and stationery to write his letters.

The buckwheat contest for Hickeyville was won this season by Mrs. Lemuel Higgins, who will go to West Hickeyville next Thursday to try for the county championship. Mrs. Higgins baked 140 buckwheat cakes in fifteen minutes. The eating contest was won by Elmer Jones over Hod Peters and Hank Tumms, the other two contestants. He ate fifteen more pancakes that either of his rivals, but Hod Peters claims that he is going to contest the decision, for he found nineteen pancakes in Elmer's pockets after the match was over. Elmer claims he brought these pancakes with him to eat on the way home if he would get hungry. The committee has the case under advisement.

Since Mr. and Mrs. Lem Higgins got their new six-cylinder self-starter they have been obliged to pay cash for their groceries. The shopkeepers are getting some suspicious of a prosperity that runs around on rubber tires.

Mr. and Mrs. Luke Spink are buildin' a home for themselves and think they are gettin' off pretty cheap. So far they have spent only $9,000 more than the architects plan called for.

I wouldn't trade places with J. Pierpont Morgan. Nobody cares a hang how I got mine, because I haven't got it.

The old subscriber, when 'tis read
Will murmur, as he rubs his head,
"I've read that thing before."

Another thing which adds much joy
Unto the writer's life,
Is to have some mutt come along
And get off this familiar song:

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

ECHOES OF CHRISTMAS.

Christmas is over, but the Christmas spirit is not. That never dies. It goes with us through all the year.

I have run on to three stories of last Christmas that seem so good they are worth repeating, even at this late day.

The first concerns a guard in the New York subway—about the last place one would look for the Christmas spirit.

The other guards were tired and snappish. The people were tired and jostled and crowded each other almost spitefully.

This guard had a smile and "Merry Christmas" for everybody. He called out cheerily:

"Give your fellow men a chance. Just a little peace and good will now. Remember it's merry Christmas."

The crowds responded instantly. The jostling stopped. People stood aside respectfully and courteously to let others pass. They went aboard in an orderly manner. Yet by their very orderliness they were enabled to make greater haste, and this guard's platform was cleared before the others.

Not only so, but all those concerned had a little better Christmas because of the incident.

Another story relates to a little girl strapped to a Bedford frame in a Brooklyn hospital. There she has been for three years, suffering from curvature of the spine.

She wrote a pathetic letter to Santa Claus, appealing not only for herself, but for the other tots about her similarly afflicted.

The letter got into one of the New York papers.

From all over the land came the response. Dolls and toys arrived by the score. A San Francisco lady sent a diamond ring. Another mailed a check for $300.

With her treasures about her the crippled child cried:

"No one can ever have a happier Christmas than I am having right now. I am so happy I can't keep from crying," and she burst into tears.

Then she gave all but a few of her precious dollies and toys to the other little cripples and sent the $300 to an old ladies' home.

The third story is of a six-year-old boy in the children's home at Cincinnati. He is placed there because his mother is employed in an office. On Thanksgiving day he was given a large, luscious orange. It was reported that he had sold it and when asked the reason he said he had put the money in the bank to buy his mamma a Christmas present.

"Mus' be sumpin' nice," he prattled. "I haven't got nobody but jus' my mamma, so it mus' be sumpin' very nice."

Do not these stories reflect the spirit of him who gave his name to Christmas, who taught good will and who loved little children?

The Influence of the Future on This Store:

The thought of the future influences every transaction made by this store. If this great business is to continue to grow and to extend into the long future, it is evident that the foundation must be made and firm in confidence of the public. Every transaction is a stone in that foundation. Every satisfied customer adds to the feasibility of our high endeavor. To make this great store stand out conspicuously in the history of this and future generations as an institution whose influence for the elevation of commercial ideas had always been keenly felt in Janesville. Recognizing this, it is obvious that we would sanction no transaction which did not in every way make for the best interests of our customers. The subjects will be as follows:

Feb. 9th.—What is Socialism: Its Growth: Its Spirit and Goal: Is it a fancy that can be destroyed by sneers and threats?

Feb. 16th.—What is the source of its strength. In what kind of soil has it been nourished: What is the justice of its contention?

Feb. 23rd.—What has socialism accomplished? The two lines along which it moves—Revolution and Evolution. Which is the most to be feared?

March 2nd.—The Weakness of Socialism. Some things which it does not take sufficiently into account. Wherein it must ultimately fail.

These sermons are delivered with a desire to give a wider conception of the kingdom as it is outlined in the New Testament, and of making all of those who hear feel that the ethics of the New Testament must play a larger part among men if ever that kingdom is realized.

P. C. HART HONORED BY ST. PAUL LINE

HAS RISEN FROM SECTION HAND TO GENERAL MANAGER OF RAILROAD.

MILTON JCT. RESIDENT

Born and Educated in Rock County He Has Gone to the Front by His Own Efforts.

P. C. Hart, who on Feb. 1st was appointed general manager of the C., M. & St. Paul railroad, with offices in the Railway Exchange building in Chicago, was born and raised at Milton Junction. His parents, Ms. and Mrs. John Hart, still make their home there.

Mr. Hart's early education was obtained in the Milton Junction public schools and for a short time he attended Milton college. P. C. Hart's rise in the railway world has been rapid and well merited. His advancement is due chiefly to his industry, tact and constant application to the work assigned to him, no matter how onerous, humble or menial it might be.

His promotion to the present high position of honor and responsibility is due in a great measure to his keen knowledge of human nature and also to his thorough knowledge of the railway business, obtained not by learning it from others, but by actually acquiring this knowledge by working in almost every department of the road, from the job of section hand up to his present high office of general manager of the road.

Mr. Hart's rare ability to get along agreeably and pleasantly with all those employed by him, as well as with the officials higher up, is due chiefly his singular success in railroad work. By his fair and impartial treatment of the men, employed under him, he succeeded frequently in restoring order and peace, where chaois and discontent prevailed. Whilst at the head of the various departments he invariably won the friendship and esteem of every trainman.

Evidence of the good will toward him has been shown on several occasions and in different ways especially by naming trainmen's lodges in his honor. On several occasions he was presented with valuable presents from the men. In Wausau he received a $300 diamond, and when leaving Chicago for the coast, the men employed by him presented him with a $500 watch.

P. C. Hart began his railroad career as a section hand. He spent several years in this branch of the road, gaining the necessary and fundamental knowledge of railway construction, which has been a valuable asset to him ever since. While working as section hand at Milton Junction he learned telegraphy. He spent some years in this department, working as operator and station agent in different cities in Wisconsin and Iowa.

By his genial and affable manner as station agent, together with business enterprise, he secured the lion's share of business, both passenger and freight, for his road. His next appointment wa chief clerk to the superintendent at Green Bay. In this capacity he worked a few years.

Trainmaster at Waustu was his next step in advancement. Two years later he was promoted to the office of superintendent of terminals in Kansas City. Remaining here for a short period he was again recalled to Wausau and advanced to the responsible position of superintendent of the Wisconsin Valley division. He remained as superintendent at Wausau for seven years. Then he was elevated to the next highest office and was sent to Chicago as superintendent of terminals.

It was in Chicago, especially, that Mr. Hart won the respect, love and friendship of all those employed under him, as well as rising in the estimation of the higher officials of the road. Mr. Hart's next promotion was to that of general superintendent of the Pacific Coast extension, his office being in Seattle. It was on account of his valuable knowledge of railway construction work that Mr. Hart was called to the west.

This knowledge he acquired all along the line as he arose step by step from the job as section hand to the high office which he now occupies. Mr. Hart will in the near future leave Seattle and go to Chicago to assume his new duties.

Milton Junction is proud of Mr. Hart and his many friend, not only in Milton Junction but every where he has ever worked, are elated over his new appointment.

BENJAMIN BISSING PLEADS HIS GUILT

Former Manager of Wear-U-Well Shoe Store Here Sentenced to Prison But at Once Paroled.

Benjamin H. Bissing, the former manager of the Wear-U-Well Shoe company in this city, charged with an attempt to shoot his wife and son about a month ago entered a plea of guilty when arraigned this morning, but not until after he had signed a quit claim deed of his property in favor of his wife. He was sentenced to a year in the state's prison at Waupun by Judge Ryan, but was immediately paroled. This course was taken in view of the fact that neither of the intended victims was injured by any of the four bullets discharged from the revolver. By mutual consent of the prosecuting attorney and the counsel for the defense, the case which was to have been heard yesterday, was adjourned until today.

STRANGE MAN SETS FIRE TO BARN AND MAKES HIS ESCAPE

Fire Started by Supposed "Tramp" on Cronin Farm Southeast of City Is Found in Time to Prevent Serious Loss.

Prompt work on the part of Mrs. L. L. Cronin, residing on the farm southeast of the city just opposite the Knickerbocker plant, prevented the destruction of a large barn and its contents valued at some $5,000 by a fire which was started by a suspicious character, on Thursday.

The flames which had been started with paper placed in the hay mow were discovered by Mrs. Cronin very soon after the fellow had left the house where he had first stopped. His peculiar actions were noticed by Mrs. Cronin who was alone at the time. Mr. McCann, a neighbor was called by 'phone and aided in putting out the flames.

Farmers in the vicinity are now on the lookout for the incendiary but up to today nothing has been seen of him. Persons passing on the road have been interrogated concerning him but he has not been seen. Word was received at the sheriff's office on Thursday immediately after the accident, but Mr. Whipple was out of town and was unable to start a search yesterday.

Mrs. Cronin was alone when the fellow rapped at the back door on Thursday afternoon. He was a tall, thickset burly person, smooth-faced, wearing a dark suit and a black cap. He was slightly better appearing than the ordinary "tramp." He asked Mrs. Cronin if her mother was in, and she replied "yes" as she did not care to let him know that she was alone. She told him that Mr. Cronin was in the barn and when she asked what he wanted, he said, "Thank you," and turned away.

Mrs. Cronin noticed that the fellow went toward the barn and that he left the door open. Fearing that the cattle who stray into the building she went out to shut the door and found the fire which she was able to extinguish. She did not see in what direction the stranger went.

The barn was filled with hay, grain, and fodder and a number of head of livestock. The loss, had the barn been destroyed would have amounted to $5,000.

Y. M. C. A. CONTRACT GOES TO EMIL PAUTZ

Building Committee Accepted Bid of $13,490 This Afternoon—Does Not Include Plumbing.

Emil Pautz will remodel and construct the additions to the Janesville Y. M. C. A. building. The bid of Mr. Pautz—$13,490—was the lowest submitted, and after the building committee had assured itself that the terms were acceptable in every respect, they decided to let the contract to him. The contract was signed at two o'clock this afternoon. The bid of Mr. Pautz does not include the plumbing, heating plant, wiring, gas and electric fixtures, bowling alleys, steel lockers, and tile for the swimming pool, for which separate bids will be asked. In addition to this equipment there is yet to be purchased the furnishings for the dormotories and the building proper, tile floor for the entry, and a complete sysrem of ventilation for which plans are being drawn by Mr. Blair, the architect. This system will be designed so as to completely change the air in any room in ten minutes.

Attention Members Lakota Club: A full attendance is desired at the club rooms Sunday afternoon, Feb. 9th. Important business.

Announcement For Superintendent

For nearly four years I have worked with many Rock county citizens to improve the schools of the whole county. Each one of you knows the difficulties in his own district, and that in many places much improvement has been made.

Your friendship and good will have helped me to get close to the real conditions and needs in each district; aiding me in the past, and fitting me for still better service hereafter, just as years of experience help in any business. So I come to you again as a candidate for re-election as your county superintendent, knowing that so many of you appreciate the faithful, hard work I have done for our schools.

Perhaps you all know of my life and work, wholly in Rock county; as a boy on the farm and in the country school, as a teacher of country schools, as a farmer for years when duty called me to the farm, as a student working through Beloit college until graduated in 1900, then as a teacher in Clinton high school, and as superintendent of schools until now.

With this record of work done, with the friendly acquaintance of thousands of children, teachers and people in the county, with their desire that I be continued as the superintendent, I come to you, thanking you for your past support, and respectfully asking for your help and your votes at the April election.

Very sincerely,
O. D. ANTISDEL.

COMPLETE HOSPITAL WITHIN TWO MONTHS

Supt. Jopin Predicts That Building Will Be Finished in That Time—Work Progresses.

The new Mercy hospital building will be completed within two months' time, according to Supt. Jopin of the Union Construction company. The plastering of the third story rooms is finished and the plastering of those on the second floor will be begun the first of the week. Hard-finish plaster will be applied throughout. Partitions and door frames have been put in on all floors and the main stairway installed. The stairway connecting the rear service porches is also in place. The boiler for the steam heating system has been set and the installation of the entire plant will be completed in two weeks. The big steel smokestack is on the ground and will be put up in a few days.

The La Prairie Grange and L. M. B. S. will have a dance at their hall Wednesday, Feb. 12th; Hatch's music.

MONEY IS PLENTIFUL BUT CAPITAL SCARCE

DISTINCT SLACKING UP IN BUSINESS SINCE EARLIER IN THE YEAR.

NEW OUTLETS SOUGHT

Attacks on Railroads and Other Large Properties Lead to Investment in Other Securities.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Feb. 8.—There is a distinct slacking up in the broader business lines since the first of the year that is to be expected. The commercial reports say that business isn't afraid, but they say it like the child in the dark, with their teeth chattering. Now, I take little stock in the perils of tariff reduction that we will hear a lot about, from now on. Real tariff reduction would be a benefit, but with the tariff beneficiaries crying out before they're hurt, and the president-to-be telling what he is going to do, they are, between them, likely to frighten the timid and affect business somewhat. But as these letters have pointed out for two or three years, the financial condition of the country is buttressed by most conservative banking. Speculation has not been encouraged and interest rates have risen to keep down skyrocketting. As the eastern people put it, "money is plenty but capital is scarce." This is the result of prolonged attack on railroad and other large properties by all classes in and out of authority, until money is seeking new and unregulated channels. For example, I am told that such big new concerns as the Woolworth Company, with fifty millions of capital is a suggestion of the directions that big capitalists are turning for investment. This is a 10 cent store business. One of the best corners in Milwaukee has recently been taken on a long lease, by this concern. Another direction recently taken by big capital is the cheap lunch places in big cities. I am told that millions are invested in these "dairy lunch" places, which accounts for the large increase of such places, in all the cities of the country. Hotels are another direction in which large finance is said to be becoming interested, and real estate companies, that build big office buildings. The Standard Oil, Rockefeller, and Steel Trust monies are mentioned in these connections, and the small business man who is in favor of "going for" so-called "big business," willy nilly, may awake to find that he is forcing big money out of some of the bigger enterprises and into competition with himself. The growth of the great department stores is a part of this important diversion of great capital to trade and restaurant keeping. It may also, develop into a virtual abandonment of public untilities to public ownership and a monopoling of the trades of feeding and clothing the public. This may be fanciful but it points a moral. Money has great ability to take care of itself. The people, the mass of them who set out to punish capital usually punish themselves, because "big business" is but the aggregate of their own savings, and private fortunes and private affairs are all on such a tremendous scale in these days, that money has to be gathered into enormous bulk to handle them. Single banks, and single small cities in Wisconsin have assets today greater than all the banks of the state less than fifty years ago. With over $2,000,000 in the state banks of Wisconsin not reckoning national banks, things are possible, without going away from home for money that imperial governments would have balked at only a short time ago. Things in the way of goverment improvements that would cost ten millions were great, even much later than Lincoln's day. Now we put that sum into a single battleship. Much of the outcry about "big business" can be made to appear absurd without going out of your own town. Milwaukee's steel, and iron and machinery business alone, just one feature of her great industrial business aggregates $100,000,000. We have to have great banks to handle such business. Take the measure of your own town for forty years, or twenty years, and you will see how prone everybody is to exaggerate and lose all perspective when they inveigh against "big" things merely because they are big.

"The cause of the people," brought down to earth and stripped of all fustian, is the opportunity to live and pursue your happiness, with the least possible meddling with what is none of your own business. If you mind your own business, take care of yourself and your family, respectably, you ought to be left very free to do so. The attitude of too many people, in these days is to spend most of their time minding other peoples' business, with the result that it is costing everybody else a lot of money to pay their bills. The tendency to public ownership, that is very manifest, promises to increase these bills, for the public will have a lot more servants to pay when it handles the public utilities. Taxes will continue to grow, because one certainty in public ownership is that the people must tail up bad management and municipal management is rarely business-like. As has been stated, previously, in some of these letters, there are a lot of cities that are getting loaded up with high taxes, with the full limit of bonded debt on top of them, and a city must pay its interest, and pay its bills, or, in time, it will be bankrupt, like anyone else. Wisconsin history can furnish some examples of municipal bankruptcy.

The Milwaukee Art Society on the first of the month closed what has been a most encouraging year in reality its second year of activity under favorable conditions. It has had some exhibitions of pictures that would have been notable anywhere, especially so was that of the old masters which drew over 5000 people. The total attendance for the year at the exhibitions was over 15,000, and the new year begins with a membership of 670, a handsome growth over that of a year ago. This is a Milwaukee institution that will be glad of a state membership, and Wisconsin people, especially those who visit Milwaukee with frequency, and are interested in art and its development, will be well repaid for the small investment necessary. It costs but $5 a year to be a member which carries with it all the privileges of the society for an entire family. This means free admission to the galleries, art lectures and all exhibitions.

Mrs. McArthur's Pension.

The late Gen. Arthur MacArthur, was Wisconsin's most distinguished soldier; from a boy of seventeen to the end of his life he served his country, with distinguished gallantry and signal ability. When he died, in this city, recently, he left no fortune for a life time in the United States army affords no opportunity for saving money. Two of his sons are following their father in their country's service. One is an officer in the navy, the other a captain in the army, Gen. MacArthur's widow, who has shared a soldier's lot for the better part of her lifetime, with the deprivations such a life imposes upon a woman, should have a pension. If pensions ever have justification, this is a case that is deserving. The general's Wisconsin friends seem to be having trouble to impress congress with the necessity and the propriety of at least $2,500 for Mrs. MacArthur's maintenance. It ought to be regarded as a public duty to maintain such a woman in the modest manner such a sum would make possible.

An Advertisement of the Erie.

In my work of keeping the Erie railroad before the shippers of Wisconsin, I find as I occasionally meet your readers, that it is effective. It seems certain from the "shots" I get that these paragraphs are read and that the incidental discussion of the new regulation of publicity by the postoffice department, has not only amused people, but has struck a good many as going the limit. The best thing recently, as to the Erie's improvements, comes from a New York newspaper, financial column, as an answer to a subscriber's inquiry about Erie stocks. I am not touting Erie stocks but as a statement of Erie upbuilding it will interest the man who has freight to ship.

"When Erie's improvements are in operating service, its facilities will immediately be increased 50% and the traffic is there waiting to be moved. At no time in the past seven years has the Erie failed to demonstrate that as fast as its facilities were improved its traffic increased to limit of capacity. The Erie is becoming a popular trunk line for movement of freight; it is second to none in operating efficiency, and, what is more to the point, it has been getting the lion's share of the increase in competitive business in recent years in trunk line territory."

Short Notes.

John A. Butler, of this city, has just issued a little folder in the interests of an enlarged civil service in Wisconsin, in which he makes a strong showing against the plan of "direct government," by initiative, imperial mandate, referendum and recall. He shows up conditions in Oregon in an illuminating manner.

At the Davidson, beginning tomorrow night, for four nights and matinee, will be given Henry Bernstein's great play, "The Attack." John Mason, who appears for the first time under Charles Frohman's management, will be the principal feature of a play that was last spring's sensation in Paris.

An income tax case has arisen here, where the tax payer objects to paying upon the dividends received from mining stock as "income," because the dividends also represent depletion of his principal. Every ton of ore taken from a mine reduces its life and its value.

LOVING CUP FOR WILLIAM McCOMBS

William McCombs and the loving cup.

William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic national committee, is to be presented with a large loving cup by the members of the committee on Wednesday at Democratic national headquarters in New York.

The cup is twenty-four inches in height and mounted upon an ebony base, and valued at $1,500. It is suitably inscribed as a token of the appreciation of the associates of Mr. McCombs of his work in connection with the campaign. National Committeeman Norman E. Mack of New York will make the presentation speech.

MAJOR'S DAUGHTER TAKES A BARRIER

Miss Dasha Allen and Her Favorite Steed.

The balmy, spring-like weather which is being enjoyed at the national capital has been the means of bringing out to the parks and drives the equestriennes of Washington society. Seldom has the District of Columbia enjoyed such an open season, and everyone able to do so is taking advantage of it. One of the most daring equestriennes seen about the capital is Miss Dasha Allen, daughter of Major Henry T. Allen, U. S. A. The picture shows her taking her mount over a rather dangerous barrier in Rock Creek Park, the well-known rendezvous near Washington.

MOST TINY REPUBLIC IN EUROPE ELECTS RULERS FOR PERIOD

San Marino Has Two Captains Regent Holding Office for Six Months—Continental News.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Feb. 8.—San Marino, the smallest independent state in Europe—the confines of the country are so restricted that the army has never fired its one piece of artillery for the reason that the projectile would invade foreign soil—has just elected its rulers for the next constitutional period. The election took place at about the same time that France elected M. Poincare to succeed M. Fullieres to the presidency of France, but it was attended with no excitement, no campaigning and practically no uncertainty, and San Marino will now continue with its new regents for a space of six months, when the next elecrion takes place.

The grand council of San Marino, composed of sixty members, elect the two rulers, who preside over the destinies of the state under the title of Captains Regent. The regents are chosen by the council without their having even to go through the formality of announcing their candidature.

San Marino has existed as a sovereign independent state since the first dawn of modern history. Its army will never trouble the peace of Europe, consisting as it does of a dozen carabiniers and a few customs house examiners. The state, which lies between two provinces of Italy, has a population of about 10,000 people and an area of 38 square miles. The cannon which is never fired for fear of international complications, rests in peace in the courtyard of the government house.

* * *

M. Poincare, the president-elect of France, will depart from the customary seclusion of French presidents and accept freely such private invitations as he may desire.

The etiquette has been that the president confine his social life to a small circle of intimate personal friends and to vast official entertainments given by himself and paid for out of the $120 000 allowed for that purpose by the government. M. Poincare sees no reason, he says, to live the secluded life of a monarch or to deprive himself of instructive and pleasant social intercourse with his fellow men, and he will do neither.

* * *

There is no center where the disappearance of the war cloud would be received with greater pleasure than in Paris. Ever since September the shadow of the Balkan complications, and then the actual operations of war, have influenced trade and commerce adversely. The reason is the sensitiveness of the market, inseparable from furs and furbelows, feathers, silks, satins and jewelry, which constitutes the basis of French industry. Prosperity is great, but it is prosperity dependent on fashion and its changes, and hence is subject to constant fluctuations.

A sign of better times however, is immense amount of rebuilding now going on in the city. Old houses are coming down to give place to showy, new business premises, overlaid with ornamentation.

This activity in bricks and mortar in the center of the town is proof of the Parisian's reluctance to inhabit the suburbs. There is practically no building going on in the districts outside the city walls. Until the great new avenues are pierced, uniting central with external Paris, the Parisian refuses to leave the light and warmth of the city. Versailles, St. Germain, St. Cloud and other suburban centers, make little progress in population, whilst Paris grows denser every day by reason of the tendency to build upward in the American style. If it were not for the buildings laws Paris would grow skyscrapers of its own as high as the Eiffel tower. The desire is there, as well as the temperament to tear down the old; but for the moment authority still restrains the extreme efforts of the innovators. But if skyscrapers have not come in the American sense of the word, American building methods have been implanted, and will assuredly flourish.

Accepting the definition that seasickness is due to a vascular vasomotor spasm and anemia of the nervous system, a Dr. Burwinkel has tried the use of nitro-glycerine as a specific against the illness.

While at sea recently he administered to a number of people suffering from seasickness a tablespoonful of a solution composed of 20 drops of nitro-glycerine in alcohol and distilled water.

The unpleasant symptoms vanished rapidly and completely. It must be admitted, however, that the beneficial effects did not last for very long, and it became necessary to take several doses during the day.

There has just died in Switzerland the engineer whose duty it had been to drive the special imperial train that carried Emperor Nicholas on his journeying in Russia. He was possessed of a considerable fortune, a result of the largess of his master.

Although a Swiss, Dominique Hof had been in the service of the Russian railways for forty years. During the last fifteen of them he had driven the Emperor's private trains from Moscow to Odessa and to other places in Russia. Hof, who retired a few months ago, would never say more of his experiences than hint at singular dangers he had risked, and the immense bribes that he had refused from revolutionists and from members of the secret police in their desire to test his uprightness.

Are Medicines Wholly Useless?
Can The Masses Get Along Without Them?

S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.,
Columbus, Ohio.

I give a portion of a letter lately received, which was to me very interesting. I also give a portion of my answer. The writer says:

"Dear Doctor Hartman: I am very much interested in your articles. I have no doubt they will do a great deal of good. Sometimes I am almost tempted to buy a bottle of Pe-ru-na and have it on hand, because of your convincing talk, but I belong to a health club. It is one rule of this club to have nothing to do with disease or medicine. Our whole talk is health and things that make for health. We are determined, all of us, to never use medicine in any form. Of course we do not attempt to deny the usefulness of medicine on some occasions, but for ourselves we have decided that we will so live that we shall never need the services of a doctor or the assistance of a medicine. What would you do if you were in my place?"

My Dear Boy: Your letter interests me greatly. I am glad to know that you are reading my articles that are appearing now in the papers. You have perhaps noticed that a portion of each article is devoted to the subject of keeping well.

What would I advise you to do under the circumstances? I should advise you to go right on as you have been doing. Get along without medicine if you possibly can. Look toward Nature for assistance. Clean habits, frugal diet. Early to bed, in a well ventilated room. Work every day at something you like to do. Keep up your enthusiasm. Have faith in Nature and Nature's God. The laws of Nature are inexorable, but the rewards of Nature are kind and beneficent beyond all expression. If you do these things you may during your whole life escape the necessity of using medicine, but even with all this you may occasionally need medicine.

But you must remember that you and your club are exceptional people, that the great masses of people go on thoughtlessly. Their diet is very illy fitted to sustain their bodies properly. Their exposure to cold and wet and heat and fatigue is very reckless. In short, they do not know how to take care of themselves. Consequently, a medicine is necessary often.

The medicine Pe-ru-na is a climatic medicine. It is intended to reach climatic troubles, troubles that arise as the direct result of exposure to climate.

It is also intended to meet those difficulties which arise from improper nourishment of the body and improper diet, producing indigestion and biliousness.

The principal climatic trouble in our country is catarrh, and a large number of people have catarrh. Perhaps one-half of our people. Such people not only need to take care of themselves as you boys are doing, but they need a medicine to render them a little assistance. Pe-ru-na is exactly what they need.

If we could have the world full of people that are living as you are, perhaps I should then not advocate the use of any drug, but you are only one in ten thousand. The rest are going on heedlessly and recklessly, and it is for them that I am recommending my Pe-ru-na.

The average household needs Pe-ru-na more than I can possibly describe. The small children, the father and mother, the grand children, are all stumbling along heedless of the laws of Nature. A sudden attack of cold, a chill, cough, hoarseness, tightness in the chest, biliousness, dyspepsia, any one of these things is liable to occur at any time in such a household.

Now, such people ought to have Pe-ru-na. At the first symptom that presents itself, or any disturbance of the body, a few doses of Pe-ru-na should be taken. If the disease is acute Pe-ru-na had better be taken a teaspoonful every hour. If it is a disturbance that allows the patient to go about his usual business, taken according to the directions on the bottle is best. If this is done it will save the people untold expense and suffering. Not one case in fifty that comes under the care of the doctor would occur if Pe-ru-na was kept in the house and taken at the very outset of the trouble. Yes, all this is true and more.

I have hoped all my life to live to see the day when obedience to the laws of Nature would be prevalent, when the people would live so they would not invite disease or provoke disturbance in the body. But I have not lived to see that day yet. I hardly think I shall. But I have lived to see the day when the people and even the medical profession are very much more interested in hygiene and sanitation than they used to be.

At one time, as a writer, I seemed to be all alone in trying to get the people to listen and become obedient to the laws governing their bodies. Now there are writers galore saying the same things. I am profoundly grateful that this is so.

So long as there are disobedient ones, so long we must have medicine. Even those who are trying to be obedient to the laws of Nature, trying their very best, need medicine for unavoidable conditions that often bring on some derangement. If such little derangements were met promptly with Pe-ru-na the day would more quickly come when even Pe-ru-na would not be needed, the day when the drug doctor would absolutely go out of business. May that day hasten. I shall do all I can while I do live to hurry on the coming of that millennium when all drugs will be relegated to the rubbish heap and all doctor books laid aside as curiosities.

Pe-ru-na, Man-a-lin and La-cu-pin manufactured by the Pe-ru-na Company, Columbus, Ohio. Sold at all drug stores. No. 47.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By

D. W. WATT

This week I am going just a little outside of my province perhaps but I want to write something about the plan to establish a showmen's club in Chicago. There are hundreds, yes thousands, of former circus men throughout the country, to whose nostrils the smell of the old time saw dust arena, each spring is like a breath of heaven.

Once under the white tops and you always feel the glamor of the profession. The members of a circus are like one big family and the plan to have a club house for them in Chicago, the present center for such a movement, appears to be most feasible. Warren Patrick, who by the way is a Janesville product, now Chicago correspondent of the New York Colipper, writes of the plan as follows:

You men of the outdoor amusement field, have you ever stopped to realize that your branch of the business is the only one without an organization, without a club?

The theatrical press agents and managers have Friars' Club, the actor, the Lambs' Club; the vaudevillians, the Comedy and White Rats' clubs; the magician affiliates himself with the Magic Club, and the moving picture fraternity with the Screen Club. Why not a Showmen's Club (by whatever name it may be known) for the vast following identified with tented entertainment?

It really seems to me that the men of the "lot" should form an organization, one that would afford them an opportunity of getting closer together, and so conducted that it would be esteemed an honor to be counted one of its members.

Once the organization is formed, steps could be taken to raise funds, by subscription, life memberships, initiation fees, dues and benefits towards the leasing or the building of a clubhouse. I venture to say that scarcely a single tented organization would hesitate to set aside a portion, at least, of one day's receipts towards this fund, and I am positive that arrangements can be effected for the giving of a monster benefit, in Chicago, for that purpose. This benefit might be in the nature of a "Carnival of all Nations," on the lot, a combination circus, Wild West and carnival attractions in one big assembly.

The benefits of a permanent clubhouse in Chicago are obvious. It could be made a winter home in the true sense of the word, for many returning from their summer season's work. In proper hands its influence would be towards the uplift of the profession to which it is devoted. It could be made so that its insignia worn upon the lapel of a member's coat would be looked upon as a badge of honor, the membership, of course, being limited to representative showmen of proper character. Chicago is the radiating centre of the tent show business of America, and I will not be at all surprised if this movement goes forward with a decided impetus. The officials and board of directors of the Showmen's Club should be made up of men of the highest standing, and I apprehend there would be no difficulty in getting the "big" men to serve.

Given a club with a gymnasium, swimming pool, pool and billiard rooms, a buffet, reading and writing rooms, suites and bedrooms, and a kitchenette for light lunch service, the tent showman who comes to Chicago will feel that he is a regular member in the large world of clubdom.

I also found some interesting items gathered by Joe Hepp, in a recent issue of the Clipper which apply to the old showman's idea of affairs that I am taking space to reprint them. They are published under the caption, "Are You Aware?"

That W. W. Cole was the first proprietor to introduce the Wild West with a circus, featuring Dr. Carver.

That the Cooper & Bailey Show was the first American circus to visit Australia.

That the Barnum & Bailey circus presented the greatest animal feature ever exhibited—Jumbo.

That the Montgomery & Queen circus was the first to visit California.

That Buckley's Hippodrome, featured with the Great Eastern circus, was the largest ever presented under canvas.

That the Thayer Noyes & Van Amburgh circus was considered a large show in 1865, traveling by wagon and using only one tent for the circus and menagerie.

That Adam Forepaugh had the largest and finest equipped wagon show prior to going on rails. Fourteen horses were required to haul the "hip" den overland.

That the W. H. Harris Nickel Plate circus was the first to invade Prince Edward Islands, and still holds the record of making the longest railroad jump, from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to Winnipeg, Manitoba, over the Canadian Pacific Railway. C. C. Wilson, of the Ringling Bros.' show can verify this.

That the Cooper & Bailey circus was the first to exhibit electric light as a feature in 1879, having an exclusive circus contract for this privilege. Later, during the same season, W. W. Cole also featured "electric light." It took some clever scheming as there was but one electric company (Brush Light Co., Cleveland, O.) in the country. (Electricity had not as yet been utilized as an illuminant.) There was an extra admission charged to see the light.

That Adam Forepaugh introduced the first cook-house with his circus, in 1871. Prior to that time all people with the show, including the workingmen, were taken care of at hotels and boarding houses. Nowadays, circus performers and managers occasionally go to hotels on Sundays.

That the first "extra 10 cent" tickets were sold by S. O. Wheeler, with the Adam Forepaugh show, in 1872, allowing the show five cents for every ticket sold. Many years later, with the same circus, James Jordan sold the extra ten cent tickets, and received one cent a ticket for his services.

That the Barnum & Bailey and Adam Forepaugh shows, combined, played at Madison Square Garden, New York City, for a spring engagement. Some show.

That the Ringling Bros.' circus in the earliest days was transported overland on three wagons. Now it requires eighty-six cars. That's what we call "progressive" show ship.

That the original Yank[illegible]nson circus was the first and [illegible]ow to travel by canal.

That it required ni[illegible]ree sixty-foot cars to transpor[illegible] Barnum & Bailey Greatest Sho[illegible]on Earth in 1903, following its five year tour in Europe. Hardly probable any show will utilize that number of cars again.

That Adam Forepaugh, at the time, paid the highest salary for a circus feature when he engaged Helen Montague, "The $10,000 Beauty."

That W. W. Cole was the first circus proprietor to use special lithographic paper in advertising his show, and never displayed his own likeness on the billboards.

That the Spaulding & Rogers circus was the first to introduce a twenty-four horse band team.

That the first forty horse team was introduced with the Barnum & Bailey show to pull the big show band wagon.

That Adam Forepaugh was the first circus man to use two tents—one for the circus and the other for the menagerie. Previous to that all shows used but one tent for their entire exhibition.

That the B. E. Wallace show had the most disastrous circus railroad wreck on record (considering the number of human lives lost), at Durand, Mich., on the Grand Trunk Railroad, in 1902.

That the Walter L. Main wreck on the Pennsylvania, near Altoona, Pa., was the second most disastrous in the history of the circus business.

That the Buffalo Bill Wild West is the only American tent show which has ever visited Italy. The entire company was admitted to the Vatican and honored by an audience with the pope.

That the Barnum & Bailey circus has visited England twice.

That the W. W. Cole show made a prosperous trip to Australia in the '80s, and returned to the United States in time for a summer tour.

That the Australian tour of the Sells Bros.' show was disastrous on account of distemper attacking the horses. Upon the show's arrival at Sydney, N. S. W., the government ordered all the circus horses shot. This crippled the show, which never received a dollar in compensation.

That the Barnum & Bailey show, in 1903, carried three twenty-four hour men, five hundred and fifty head of horses, four boss canvasmen for the two large tops, and it cost $50,000 a week to run the show. One thousand three hundred and thirty-nine individuals were on the payroll back with the circus, and ninety-two were employed with the cook tent.

That the Robert Stickney in the early '80s was considered the most accomplished all around circus performer in the business—rider, leaper and general athlete.

That Col. Geo. W. Hall ("Popcorn George") in the early '80s chartered a schooner at Jacksonville, Fla., which sailed for the West Indies with his circus, making nearly all of the Windward Islands. George W. De Haven was in charge of the show until it reached Trinidad, when Col. Hall joined the aggregation.

That John Hennesy and Geo. W. De Haven took the first American circus to Mexico, crossing the Rio Grande at Laredo. Howe's London Circus (French & Monroe), in 1887, was the next American show to tour Mexico, covering the same route, traveling by rail.

That P. T. Barnum & Co.'s circus in 1873 gave three performances each day during the season, with the exception of three days of two performances each. The doors opened at 10 a. m., 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. A parade was given each day. This was never attempted before, and has not been since. An amphitheatre was built on each lot a few days in advance, which was covered with canvas upon arrival of the show. Charles McLean, now with the Two Bills' show, was boss canvasman of the Barnum show in 1873.

That the Adam Forepaugh show was the last to exhibit on the lake front (1893) in Chicago.

That the Adam Forepaugh circus was the first to exhibit in Chicago after the big fire, coming the next year, 1872, with his big wagon show.

"AFRICAN HUNT PICTURES."

In the Paul J. Rainey African Hunt Pictures, that will be seen at the Myers Theater on February 24, 25 and 26, with daily matinee a number of facts not generally known concerning natural history are brought out.

A picture is shown of a herd of zebra numbering one thousand, led by a wildebeest. It seems that the male wildebeest, which belongs to the "gnu" family, when driven out of his own tribe, seeks out a herd of zebra and appoints himself their leader. As long as he continues uttering a sound resembling the rough, sharp growl of a bear, the zebra follows his lead, perfectly secure that no enemy is near. The moment the leader seents danger, the fact is communicated to the herd of zebra by the silence of the wildebeest and they immediately stampede.

In these pictures is also shown a wild dog captured by Mr. Rainey a feat that stands unparalleled in the chronicles of natural history. It is said that Hagenbeck, the famous animal dealer of Hamburg, after having spent over $10,000 in an effort to procure a specimen of the "Fora natura caninionsis", gave up in despair, and declared that no one would ever be able to secure one of these animals.

Another picture shows a herd of several hundred Thompson gazelles, which he declared by scientists to be the most timid creature in the world. The photographs were taken seventy-five yards distant from these animals, and never before has man been in such close proximity to the timid little beast, which is said to be of so nervous a physical character that the shot of gun oftimes frightens him to death.

Another picture disclosed a baby rhino that was captured. It was brought up by a native of the Kavanda tribe. The moment the native left the kraal the rhino began uttering plaintive cries and was not appeased until the negro returned to it. This baby rhino is now in the London Zoological Garden.

It was proven by these pictures that the lion, which has always been regarded as the King of Beasts, turned coward when brought to bay by a pack of Mississippi bear hounds.

SCENE FROM "PAID IN FULL," AT MYERS THEATRE, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 9, MATINEE AND EVENING.

"PAID IN FULL."

"Paid in Full," a new play of contemporary American life, by Eugene Walter, will be played at Myers Theater Sunday February 9, matinee and evening by a company of exceptional merit. With the Sixth Commandment as its moral theme, the play is said to get very close to life. It is written in the everyday speech of the average American and is said to be both daring and deeply impressive.

"THE GIRL AT THE GATE."

There was a laughable incident in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, one night a few weeks ago, and strange to say, the one the joke was on enjoyed it as much as any of the onlookers. Lucy Weston of "The Girl at the Gate" company had been tendered a banquet by a number of her admirers in the Windy City. It took place at the Sherman after the night show, and Lucy, as she tersely expressed it, got "all dolled up" for the occasion. In other words, she donned a handsome evening gown and all the accompaiments. Included in the outfit was one of the latest fads of society people, a pair of evening slippers with the heels studded with several large diamonds. The banquet had hardly started when there was an interruption that put all the guests in an uproar. Miss Weston was seated at the head of the table shaped like a horse-shoe, and as a procession of waiters came into the room bearing the first course of the banquet suddenly one of them placed his tray on a side table and made a dive to the floor at the exact spot where Lucy was seated. Grabbing the heel of her slipper he gave a vivacious tug and the next moment the actress went to the floor with a thud that shook the room. And as she did the waiter keeled over backwards, bearing aloft the slipper of Miss Weston. Several gentlemen present were so angry that they started to remonstrate with the waiter, but Miss Weston, with her customary cheery laugh asked for an explanation which the excited waiter managed to stammer out. It seems that the night before a guest of the hotel had lost a diamond in the restaurant and a large reward had been offered for its return. All the waiters had been searching for it, and when this waiter saw the rays from the diamond in the heel of the slipper, he thought sure he had found the missing gem and made up his mind to get it before any of the rest had a chance to grab it.

IRISH STATESMAN TOURING AMERICA

Sir Horace Plunkett.

Sir Horace Plunkett, member of the British parliament, is now on a tour of America. He is particularly interested in the development of the new agricultural credit system which is receiving the attention of this country's legislators and scientists. Sir Horace started a similar movement in Ireland in 1889 with the result that in that country farming is now as well organized an industry as any other business.

Gives Interesting Account Of The Battle At Franklin

The following account of the battle at Franklin, Tenn., is taken from the files of the Gazette fifty years ago this spring.

We are permitted to publish the following letter from Lieut. Col. Bloodgood of the 22d Wisconsin, written the night of the fight at Franklin. It will be seen that he cut his way out with a portion of the right wing of the regiment.

My Dear Brother:—Long before you receive this you will hear of our disastrous battle. So far as we have learned this evening, the major and myself are the only field officers that escaped from the field of battle, neither of us receiving a scratch. We left the day before yesterday on a reconnoisance. There were five regiments of infantry, six pieces of artillery, and a regiment of cavalry. Aftr proceding a few miles the first day we met a small body of the rebels and drove them back. They had but one piece of artillery. During the day we gained information that there were larger forces to support them. Col Coburn commanding the brigade, notified General Gilbert of the fact, he having command of the forces at Franklin. The answer to the reply was to move on. It seems that General Resecrans was to send a force from Murfreesboro to meet us at a certain point some twelve miles from Franklin. We had not gone further than four miles from our place, where we first met the enemy, making our camp a little beyond where we had the skirmish.

During several conversations with our officers that evening, and also with Col. Coburn the day before, I remarked it looked as if the rebels were leading us into a trap, for a small body would stop and skirmish, and then retreat. This morning we struck tents early, and moved to the front, the enemy gradually retreating. Our cavalry were deployed to the right and left, as skirmishers, dismounted, their horses lead to the rear of us, and then followed the rest of the infantry. About noon I was riding some distance of our troops, just in the advance of our regiment, and in the rear of the cavalry, when a shot from the enemy's battery struck in the pike, among the cavalry causing quite a scattering but I believe done no damagee. I immediately returned to my regiment. Three pieces of our artillery were immediately planted on the hill to the left of the pike, and opened up on the enemy. Our regiment and the 19th Michigan moved up into the line of battle on the slope to support them. Two pieces were placed upon the right; the 81st and 33d Indiana to support them.

Our batteries then opened on the enemy. We were answered by treble our numbers—the hills on the three sides seemed to be alive with them. We were protected in front by the batteries, but they had good range on us from the flank. The shot and shell came thick around us—our two regiments had to keep moving to keep out of range, and how we escaped being cut to pieces at that time is wonderful.

Several balls passed over my head, and others struck the ground only a short listance from me. Not expecting to meet so large a force of the enemy, our battery had not sufficient ammunition, and soon gave out, as the day before we had used six-hundred rounds to a cannon. Then the enemy advanced upon us, hemming us in a half circle. They had five regiments to our one. Our men fought well—no men could have fought better—our whole brigade was driven down in a hollow, the enemy closing in a half circle around us. It was most wonderful that I escaped so, for the balls pelted about me like hail. My horse plunged and reared, and fairly groaned with fear. In the confusion we could get no orders—each regiment had to look after themselves. I was at the right of our regiment—the colonel was in the center. I was notified by several mounted officers, that a large body of the enemy was moving around the hill to cut us off completely. I sent word down the line to the Colonel to move the regiment in that direction by the flank and as he did I was left in the manangement of the right of the regiment I gave the order as there was no time to hesitate, about 150 on the right moved to my direction. I supposed the whole regiment was moving, but when I crossed the pike I found that they had not done so. The next moment the rebels came over the hill by thousands and drove them back, completely surrounding them. Our cavalry and artillery were just ahead of me. The army followed us six miles trying to cut us off.

Out of the whole brigade we saved 175 mes. the artiller and cavalry came in, but did not belong to our brigade. I brought in about 150 men and the other 25 men were all that were saved out of three regiments, only nine officers returned Colonel Coburn, commanding brigade is also reported to be killed, also Colonel Gilbert, of the 19th Michigan, Colonel Baird, of the 85 Indiana, and Lieutenant Colonel Grain. Conflicting reports about Col. Utley, some say he was killed and others saying he was taken prisoner. The last account I have of the adjutant of our regiment was that he had a finger shot off, and a rifle ball lodged in a package of letters over his heart. It knocked him off his horse, but he soon recovered from the shock.

It is 11 o'clock, I cannot write you any more tonight. I cannot describe to you what we have gone through.

Yours, in haste,
E. BLOODGOOD.

HER LOVELY STATUE MAY BE IN PARADE.

Mrs. Christian D. Hemmick, society woman of Washington, who was formerly Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney, is the owner of a lovely marble statue which some of the suffragists are striving to have in the suffrage parade of March 3 at the national capitol. The police, however, object to the idea of having the statue in the parade, on hte ground that it might create a riot. It is a life size figure of a recumbent nymph and reposes in the garden of the Hemmicks.

Those who favor having the statue in the parade do so on the theory that the pageant should be noted for its simplicity. The statue's utter lack of drapery makes it as simple as a spring morning.

YOUNG GIRL LEADS GANG OF BANDITS

Ida Leighton.

Ida Leighton, a 19-year-old girl of Lynn, Mass., is believed by the police to be the leader of a gang of young bandits who have stolen thousands of dollars worth of goods from the summer residences of wealthy Boston people at Marblehead and Swampscott, near Boston. After her arrest a few days ago $1,500 worth of stolen articles were taken from her room.

Other members of the gang, most of whom are under age, are under arrest. One is held in $2,000 bonds, charged with violation of the Mann white slavery act in 1910.

Why Some Women Marry

SOME one reports that Mrs. Belmont has come out with the statement that many women marry because they are cowards.

That is putting it rather strong, isn't it?

No wife would like to acknowledge, even to herself, that she married because she was afraid to face the world and try to support herself.

But perhaps some wives there are, if they probe deep enough, would find this to be the case; and if they are honest, would admit that Mrs. Belmont was right.

But it is a rather venturesome proceeding to marry because you lack the courage to face the world single-handed. If marriage is understood rightly, it requires a lot more courage to enter the state of matrimony than it does to jump into the thick of the fray for bread and butter. There are many more lions to be met and conquered in the holy state of matrimony than there are in the commonplace realms where a living is made. And the only thing that will vanquish these lions is love. If one enters marriage without love, the prospect is that life will be far less happy than had she fought the fight of life alone.

But it is not always cowardice that prompts a woman to marry rather than to try to support herself. She doesn't so often fear earning her living, as she dislikes the prospect of being a breadwinner in the big world. She is often lazy. But more frequently the work the home offers is more to her taste than the work the business world offers. She marries for a home, not because she is afraid of making the venture to support herself, but because she craves the home life and the home associations. She is a coward when it comes to going without these. And so she takes a chance and marries in order to get them.

But though this method may be a little more worthy than marrying to avoid supporting herself, is it a sufficient reason for marrying?

The thoughtful wife or the thoughtful husband knows it is not. Perhaps those who live superficially might be content. But those who have touched the heights and sounded the depths of marriage know it can, if entered into rightly, yield a happiness so pure that it is a pity that it should be missed by the superficial understanding of it. And they know also that it holds the possibilities of such unhappiness, that it is unwise to venture upon so serious a voyage for such unjustifiable cause.

So though at first we may be inclined to resent Mrs. Belmont's imputation, there is food for thought in it.

EFFICIENCY IN SHOPPING.

ARE YOU tired of hearing about the efficiency movement, that great new science of doing things in the quickest and easiest way?

If you are not, I have a new application for it. As you know, the efficiency idea has been applied to housework, and it has been proved that by eliminating useless motions, perfecting her apparatus and improving the conditions under which she works, such as the position of apparatus, the heights of sinks, tables, etc., a big slice of every woman's time and energy can be saved.

Now if the science of efficiency is useful in this department of woman's work, why can't it be applied to others? And in what possible direction could a study of energy and time-saving be more valuable than in relation to shopping?

Are you an efficient shopper? I don't simply mean, do you get what you go after? But do you get it without using an unduly large amount of time and energy?

It was after a morning of shopping which left me astonishingly tired and out of temper that I began to wonder if I might not use more efficient methods in this matter.

I went over the ground thoroughly in my mind and formulated some rules for more efficient shopping. If shopping leaves you astonishingly tired and out of temper, you may be interested in them.

One should always make out a list, not only of articles to be shopped for, but of places to be visited. Twice during that day I went back to a shop in which I had bought one article, for another. It will certainly save time if, before leaving home, or on the journey to town, you make out a list of shops to be visited in the order of their convenience. Under each shop write down the articles which you want to look for there.

If you are going to have several things to carry, do not try to carry them separately. It is confusing to try to keep track of them, to say nothing of the danger of loss,—and confusion often tires one more than actual work. Either have some kind of a bag or case to carry them in or have them wrapped up together.

Don't let yourself get too tired. Five minutes spent in the rest room just relaxing would double your efficiency for the rest of the forenoon.

Don't let yourself get too hungry. When you begin to feel confused and unalbe to concentrate, get a cup of chocolate or bouillon and see how much simpler everything seems.

Be sure to wear comfortable shoes and a light, small hat.

These are just a few things that I feel would make me a more efficient shopper. They may please you, and then again, they may not. Even if they don't, they may start a train of thought which will bring you some helpful ideas.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Dishes For Invalids.

APPLE TEA—Bake two large cooking apples and put them in a jug; pour boiling water over, let them cool, strain carefully and add brown sugar to taste. Very soothing for the throat.

ORANGE WHEY—Put pint of milk into a bowl and squeeze into it the juice of an orange; heat slowly until it curdles, strain away curds and put whey in a jug for use. Relieves thirst when nothing else will.

BAKED MILK is very nourishing. Get a perfectly cleas crock, fill it with sweet milk, cover it with white paper and tie down carefully; let it stand in moderately hot oven from eight to 10 hours. It looks like clotted cream and is very delicious as well as being a good food.

BARLEY WATER made warm with lemon juice in it, is good, so is linseed tea.

The Table.

SUET APPLE DUMPLING (very fine)—Pare and slice apples, fill two-quart basin two-thirds full. Chop half cup suet fine; use 1½ cups buttermilk or sour milk, one teaspoon soda, half teaspoon salt; sift in flour to make stiff batter, spread on top of apples, steam two hours or bake one hour. Eat with cream or milk and sugar as sauce.

Pudding sauce: One cup sugar, half cup butter, half teaspoon grated nutmeg wet with little cold water; pour on boiling water, stir until boils, add hot water until the right thickness. Can use lemon or vanilla extract if preferred.

RAISIN AND NUT PIE—One cup seeded raisins, one-half cup hickorynut meats broken up, two thirds cup sugar pinch of salt, small piece butter. Put in saucepan on range, let boil about 10 minutes, stir in one tablespoon cornstarch which has been mixed with a little cold water; remove from fire. Bake with two crusts. The above recipe may be put into one crust, which has been already baked. Beat white of one egg, add two tablespoons sugar put on top of pie. We think it excellent.

CORN CAKES—One pint sour milk or buttermilk, one egg, one teaspoon sugar, one heaping teaspoon salt, one-half cup white flour and enough cornmeal to make batter stiff enough to drop from spoon so as not to spread much on griddles, one tablespoon melted butter put in after flour and meal, one teaspoon soda (put in last) dissolved in a little very hot water. Do not beat. A good breakfast when served with maple, molasses or sugar sirup; one-third granulated and two-thirds brown sugar.

Things Worth Knowing.

I HAVE AN ICE BOX this winter that does not cost me a cent, and I find it very handy. I take a large wooden pail, fill it half full of snow, pack it down solid like ice. On this I set oysters, meat and other food, cover well and lay a board over pail. I keep it out of doors on back veranda or in any cold safe place.

HANDY POCKET—We often find it a problem where to carry money or jewelry. It is not safe to carry much in the handbags, as they are often snatched from our arms I find a handy pocket can be made and fastened to the placket of our skirts, if the opening of the skirt is near the front Make a nice, deep pocket and sew it to the placket, so you can open one or two buttons and your hand is in the pocket Not much danger of having money lost or stolen from this pocket

THE KITCHEN CABINET

HOWEVER dull a woman may be, she will understand all there is in love. However intelligent a man may be, he will never know but half of it. —Mad. Fee.

A FEW WAYS WITH MEAT.

A change in the serving of meats is always welcomed.

Lamb Cutlets.—Saute eight lamb chops on one side; on the cooked side place a teaspoonful of cooked, seasoned macaroni. Cover with buttered crumbs and let cook in the oven about eight minutes. Then serve hot. Tomato may be added to the macaroni, if desired.

Veal Cutlets.—Rub the cutlets with a little chopped onion, pepper and salt and broil. Serve on a bed of mashed potatoes. Do the seasoning with salt when the chops are cooked.

Braised Calf's Liver.—Lard the rounded side of the liver with strips of salt pork. Fry a sliced onion in a little salt pork fat; put the liver into a casserole (a stone covered dish), thicken the fat in the pan with a little flour, and pour the gravy over the liver in the casserole; season well, add stock or water, if needed, and cook covered for two hours.

Veal Chops in Casserole.—Wipe six chops with a damp cloth, to remove bits of bone; roll in flour, season and cook until brown in hot fat. Remove to a casserole, add a cup of broth, a half cup of cooked rice and a cup of tomato puree. Season with salt and cayenne, add half a dozen onions which have been parboiled, drain and brown them in a little butter. Add to the meat, and water if not enough liquid, and cook gently for an hour.

Turkey Loaf.—Chop a quart of cold roast turkey, mix with soft bread crumbs, two eggs, a small cup of chopped celery, salt and pepper. Press into a buttered tin, lay on strips of salt pork and bake an hour. Serve hot with giblet gravy.

EXPERIMENTING.

"By dint of much experimenting," says Dr. W. A. Evans, "you arrive at a perfect knowledge of your bodily requirements and find out just what food and what drink and how much of each is needed to keep you in good condition." No two cases are quite alike and some experimenting must be done, but without understanding of principles, much time will be lost. One can learn from the experience of others, and it is best to take advantage of the accumulated knowledge of those who have devoted much time to experimenting. It would require half a lifetime for the average person to learn by his own experimenting what has been given in these Hints, if indeed it could be acquired by one person. No experience of another, in anything, can be perfectly adapted to any case, but it saves much time and expense to get the benefit of the experience of others. In many respects diet is largely experimental, but we already have a vast amount of valuable knowledge of it, which no one should be without.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
BY MRS ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young fellow of 21, just off the plains. I am in love with three girls. Two of my sweethearts are Norwegians and one is a Greek. I am amply able to support a family, having a quarter section of land. My parents are both dead and so I ask you for advice.

The Greek girl is handsome and neat and I know she likes me. Her folks own a large fruit store, but would rather she would marry a Greek. I am very fond of the Norwegian girl, but she is shiftless and slouchy. Would it be proper for me to ask her to dress more neatly?

The third girl is about five years my senior. She's a good worker and ambitious—just the girl for the farm. But she likes another fellow and if she took me I would be afraid she would be marrying me for my farm.

Is it healthy to take anti-fat?

ANXIOUS.

Why not wait and look around a little more? You are still quite young. I'm afraid that none of these girls would really suit. Besides, you will make a better husband if you wait a few years and know a little more about women—good women, I mean. Make friends among them, and when you see one that you REALLY love and can't live without, grab her quick.

I can't recommend anti-fat. Diet and exercise are safer.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—When a fellow calls in the evening, what time should he call and when should he leave? (2)—How long should a couple keep company, when they are of age, before being engaged? (3)—How long should they be engaged before getting married? (4)—Is it nicer to have a large wedding or go on a wedding trip? (5)—What city would be nice to visit on a wedding trip? (6)—What tsone do you prefer for an engagement ring? (7)—How should we arrange fancy pillows in a parlor. (8)—Is it true that the French people are noted for their intelligence? IRISH LASSIE.

(1)—Eight P. M. is a good hour to call. He should leave in time for a girl to get her beauty sleep—10 P. M. at the latest. (2)—It depends upon how soon they find they are in love with each other. (3)—If they are both in position to marry, the engagement should be short—say, three months. (4)—A home wedding, with just relatives and nearest friends as guests, would be very sweet. A short wedding trip is always something to be remembered and talked about afterward. (5)—Most bridal couples like to visit Washington, D. C.

(6)—The diamond is usually selected, but often the bride's birthstone is preferred. (7)—Pillows should not be so fancy that they can't be used. Arrange them comfortably on couches or in big chairs. (8)—Not particularly.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 17, but look much older on account of deep furrows across by forehead. What can I do to remove them? (2)—My hair becomes oily three or four days after shampooing it. Can you give me a remedy. BRUNETTE.

(1)—You probably have the habit of wrinkling your forehead. Try to cure the habit. Meantime, massage the furrows with cold cream, rubbing across them. One a week cut long strips of heavy courtplaster (get the best kind from the druggist). Bathe the skin smooth with the fingers and paste the courtplaster over the wrinkles. Leave it on over night and next morning soak the plaster off with alcohol if it sticks too tight.

(2)—For oily hair make a mixture of 2 oz. alcohol, 2 oz. witch hazel and 14 grains resorcin. Rub well into the scalp every day until the oiliness disappears.

TO PUT CORD in a buttonhole with very little trouble, cut buttonhole and overcast edge. Take cord of desired size and slip it under overcasting. It is then ready to finish with the usual buttonhole stitch.

MOTHER of croupy children will be glad to know that pine tar burned in the room where the sufferer is will bring relief. The quickest way is to fill an old pail or tin dish with red-hot coals, drop the tar on and set where child can inhale the fumes.

FOR BURNS—Apply white of an egg on a cloth; it draws the pain out and will not leave a scar.

THE ROAD TO MEN'S HEARTS.

"The turnpike road to men's hearts I find lies through their mouths, or I mistake mankind."

If the above be true—which I recently saw in print—then the "kitchen," instead of the "parlor" would be the place for laying the plot of "The Spider and the Fly." Certainly a web could be woven around the modern cook stove which would entice and hold any man if girls were only willing to apply themselves to this greatest of all arts—cooking. Understand me, I do not say that the above statement is true, but this I do know, that if I went into every home in the land, I would find the great majority of the cooking planned for a man. It is what he likes, when he likes it and how he likes it.

Years ago in the beginning of homes and home making the husband went forth to kill game and brought it home where the wife was ready to cook and serve it. Later it was tilling the soil and having things grow, which by the good house-wife was made into appetizing dishes for the family. She also had time then to spin the yarn for making and made their clothes. Civilization and progression have taken care of much of this labor in the home. From the making of candles and care of lamps we have come to turning on a button and, behold! electric light. From the rags which were sewed and braided into rugs and later woven in carpets, we have everything that can be manufactured in rugs and carpets outside of the home; all necessary labor is made wonderfully easy through labor-saving devices for cleaning and cooking besides schools and lectures over a large part of our country are training our daughters and mothers for greater efficiency in their home.

While large bakeries do much for us, the real essential, main part of the cooking has not been taken from the home kitchen. The true meaning of all this is community life and perfect happiness and health only come through each one doing the duty or work intended for them.

If this cooking, which is the "Road to Men's Hearts," is looked upon as an art, a science, knowing how, what greater thing could woman aspire to? No one believes these days that a woman should cook and wash and scrub and clean all day with no outside interests. Not by any means, but she must use her brains and think of the best and quickest ways in her cooking. Every woman should have at least a single fireless cooker. Why have a ham, tongue or corn beef using up gas and the housekeeper watching it on the stove, when a fireless will do the work better and no fuel nor watching. That is where brains count. Girls learn to cook! Not just make fudge and angel creams, but learn why we use foods at all, and if so, which are best for you or your husband; if he comes home after a day's hard work, whether from the field or an office, what is it about him which has kept the old saying for centuries on our tongues: "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

What caused the famous reply of Mary Livermore when a woman wrote her what to do for the bad temper of her husband and she replied, "Feed the brute!" Nothing but a recognition in each instance of our overworked, tired, cross man (maybe) and when properly fed, the physical side rebounded and he was physically, mentally and morally recuperated.

An entire year I directed all the lunches which a devoted wife cooked and carried to her husband's office. Every dinner was planned and cooked by her to lessen his desire for drink. This was done without his knowledge and we both lived to see the day when that desire was a thing of the past and all with a knowledge of foods, their combinations and careful preparation of the same. Any woman can win a man and draw him into the "web" if she so desires, but it is another thing to keep him. Don't tempt him with all the good things to eat before marriage and then expect to hold him by careless, indifferent cooking. "Man cannot live by bread alone," but is a very essential asset in keeping out of the divorce court.

A judge said to me two years ago as he was looking at my Card Index Cooking Recipes: "I believe if I could present one of these to the wife and tell her to go home and follow it when young couples come to me for divorce, it would be the means of reuniting them in almost every instance." This comes from one who should know the truth. Tomorrow I will give some recipes for dishes most men like.

TALKS WITH MOTHERS
By GERTRUDE STEVENS AYEES.

PERSONAL HAPPINESS AND THE NEW BABY.

Do you believe, little mother-to-be, in personal happiness? Well, if you do, and most people spend their lives seeking it, as much as is possible should be yours now. You will remember I advised in my last talk, "Happiness in your surroundings." Most of us allow our surroundings to influence our lives too much, but unless you are an exceptional woman existing under exceptional circumstances, there are times, more or less frequent, when you rebel at what you have, or what you do not and cannot have.

If there are things you want to make you happy and can have them, get them now by all means; but if this is impossible, make up your mind to be happy just as you are. Things are not essential to happiness, although we often think they are. If you have fears and forebodings, seek some sensible friend who has had experience and talk things over. Once understanding that fears are mostly groundless, by exercise of your will power, put them under your feet and if they rise again throttle them at once. To sum up all: keep the disposition you want your child to have.

Harmony is the greatest factor in a happy life. If you can attain to that, success is yours. Rebel at nothing unless you can change circumstances or relations and remove the cause of rebellion. Scientists agree that mental states like joy, anger, irritability, pleasure, etc., have definite effects on the functions of the body. So now, as never before, have your life one of peace and poise. Your relation to your husband is of immense importance. Perhaps I should have said, his relation to you; but unfortunately I am not talking with expectant fathers, who do seldom realize the feelings, physical and mental, of the mother-to-be. Talk things over plainly and sensibly, hiding nothing in your heart that would relieve the tension if shared with him. Establish a relation of fullest sympathy and understanding. Keep from complaining, but encourage him to patience and forbearance.

If you have not read much on the subject of conception and gestation previous to this time I would advise you to leave all medical books alone, as they are apt to cause imaginary troubles and add to your discomfort, instead of increasing your happiness. All such reading should be done by your husband, that he may watch and guard you with an intelligent eye. It is possible for a man thus to fit himself for many an emergency and to be of inestimable value to you at this time.

Be sure to take some time each day for rest—absolute relaxation and repose. I did not speak of this in my talk on health; because this kind of rest is largely mental. Have you ever tried to hold your mind an absolute blank? You can, at first, do this for only a few seconds, but you will find by practice the time can be lengthened to many minutes, and I know of no rest more beneficial than this.

FACE DISGRACEFUL WITH RASH

Large Scabs Would Form, Fester and Break. Itching and Burning. Kept from Sleeping. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—"My trouble of skin disease started merely as a rash on my face and neck, but it grew and kept getting worse until large scabs would form, fester and break. This was just on the one side of my face, but it soon scattered to the other side. I suffered a great deal especially at night on account of its itching and burning. I would scratch it and of course that irritated it very much. This rash was on my face for about two years sometimes breaking out lots worse and forming larger sores. It kept me from sleeping day or night for a couple of months. My face looked disgraceful, and I was almost ashamed to be seen by my friends.

"A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I would bathe my face with hot water and a lot of Cuticura Soap, then I would put on the Cuticura Ointment. In less than two days' time, the soreness and inflammation had almost entirely disappeared, and in four weeks' time you could not see any of the rash. Now my face is without a spot of any kind. I also use them for my scalp and hair. They cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Pansy Hutchins, Feb. 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

OSHKOSH TO LICENSE ITS MILK SALESMEN

Ordinance Has Been Introduced to Regulate and Restrain The Sale Of Milk in That City.

Venders of milk in Oshkosh will be licensed hereafter if the milk ordinance recently introduced in the city council is passed. The ordinance, which is said to embody the best features in those of Milwaukee, La Crosse, Kenosha, and Green Bay, provides that no one shall engage in the business of selling milk in that city without having first been licensed to do so by the city health officer. The license fee to sell milk from one to two cows shall be fifty cents and for selling milk produced from more than two cows, $1. The fees are to be paid into the city treasury after the permits have been granted. The city health officer shall not issue any such license unless he is satisfied with the sanitary condition of the stables where the containing the milk. The milk and its containers shall be protected from the sun and rain, and as far as is practicable from dust and all impurities of the air.

Several sections are aimed particularly toward securing pure milk for the consumers. The sale as pure milk of any milk from which cream has been removed, or which has been adulterated by the addition of water, or any other substance is specifically prohibited. Skimmed milk must be sold in containers labeled in a prescribed manner. No person shall keep cows for the production of milk in an unhealthful condition, or feed them on food that produces impure, diseased, or unwholesome milk; and it is forbidden to feed cows on distillery waste, or upon any substance in a state of putrefaction or rottenness. Milk obtained from cows so fed, or milk exposed to or contaminated by the discharge or exhalations of any person ill with any contagious disease or milk applicant's cow or cows are kept. He and his assistants may at any time after the issuance of the license investigate into the condition of the cow stables to determine whether their condition renders the business there carried on detrimental to the public health. If the condition of the stables is found to be thus detrimental the health officer shall immediately revoke the license to the owner or keeper of the stables and no new licenses shall be issued to him until the stables shall have been placed in a sanitary condition. No license will be granted to any person refusing to permit inspection and any license granted will be revoked if the holder thereafter refuses to permit inspection.

Bringing of milk into the city or delivery in open or uncovered wagons is made unlawful. Delivery must be made in wagons so constructed that their covering shall not come into contact with the cans or vessels from tubercular cows, is also put under the ban as impure and unwholesome.

In any prosecution under the ordinance after the milk shall be shown upon analysis by the health officer or by any chemist appointed by him to contain more than 250,000 bacteria to the cubic centimeter, or to contain less than twelve per cent of milk solids, or to contain less than nine per cent of milk solids exclusive of butter fat, such milk shall be deemed to be adulterated. Violation of the provisions of the ordinance is made punishable by a fine not to exceed $50 for each and every offense or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding thirty days.

MEDFORD CITY MARKET DECLARED A SUCCESS

The city market of Medford, Oregon, is an unqualified success according to the Mail Tribune of that city. "It has not only helped solve the high cost of living, but also the high cost of selling. It has brought the consumer and producer together, increased the profits of the grower and reduced the price paid by the consumer.

"Sales during the summer and autumn averaged $2,000 a week. Over $350 of berries and cherries were sold a day during the season. From 300 to 400 dressed chickens have been marketed weekly. Many tons of green vegetables have been sold and are being sold, every month. Thousands of sacks of potatoes and onions and approximately three cars of cabbage have been disposed of at a profit to the grower. Many barrels of cider and vinegar have been disposed of. Most of the 24 booths have been occupied since the market opened.

"The price of meat has been materially cut and the farmer enabled to market his surplus. Without the meat, the success of the market would be problematical. With it, the success is beyond all question.

"The farmers are bringing to the market at present plenty of good dressed pork, cider, vinegar, celery, sour kraut, dried prunes, almonds, sorghum, pop corn, sweet cider, boiled cider, pumpkins, squash, cabbage, lettuce, radishes and in fact all sorts of vegetables. here will be home grown letture, radishes and onions in the market all winter. Butter and eggs are scarce.

"The market has been a stimulant for growing of produce and garden truck. Another year and the supply will be much greater, the variety more etxended. More than that, the market has almost paid its own expenses from the nominal booth rentals.

"The morning this was written there were 264 boxes of applpes on display. We have 24 booths in the public market, twenty of which rent for $3.00 per month each and three day booths at 20 cents per day.

"The cash receipts of the public market for booth rent, commencing June 1, 1912 and ending December 10, 1912, were $408|95."

EAU CLAIRE OPENS BIDS ON CHIEF'S AUTOMOBILE

Bids on the fire chief's motor car were opened Tuesday by the council but the contract has not yet been awarded as the bids, seven in all are being carefully gone into before final action is taken. The specifications upon which the bids were submitted call for a motor car lighter than the auto hose car now in commission at No. 2, but it will carry a chemical engine and chemical hose, also some of the smaller fire-fighting tools, such as axes, etc.—Eau Claire Leader.

HARVARD COUNCIL ROOMS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

The new city council rooms in the engine house building are nearly completed, the plans now being to hold the next regular meeting of the council therein. The heating plant has been installed, the painting and decorating finished and now all that waits permanent occupancy is the arrival of the furniture ordered, and that is expected every day.—Independent.

TACOMA MAY BE FIRST TO OPERATE CAFETARIA

Tacoma, Wash.,—Probably the first cafeteria ever operated by a municipality will be opened by the Metropolitan park board early this spring at the Point Defiance pavilion. On the first of the year the board took over all concessions at the pavilion including the boating dock, and it will operate them with the assistance of a superintendent. In addition to the money that will be spent by the board in improving the pavilion, $5,000 will be spent in erecting a car station with public comfort facilities near the street car entrance to the park. Plans for this building were prepared by Hare & Hare, of Kansas City, special park architects, several years ago. The present board will follow out the original plans to a great extent. Estimates for the work are being prepared now by the board and bids will be asked for soon. Food at cost will be the board's policy in operating its pavilion and an effort will be made to make the cafeteria one of the park's main attractions. The boats for rowing that were used last year will be overhauled and new ones added.

EAU CLAIRE MAKES RULES FOR CITY SOCIAL CENTERS

Superintendent Schultz of Eau Claire has made a report to the Board of Education in that city of rules governing the establishment and maintenance of civic social centers.

The report by Supt. Schultz was rich in detail, covering provisions of state law on all civic social centers, and such activities as evening schools, vacation schools, clubs, playgrounds, vocational schools and so on only religious and partisan political organizations being excluded.

It is proposed the board create a committee of four, to which others may be added, not over seven. These to take charge, under rules laid down. Then comes a director with salary; suggestion as to leaders.

Each civic social center to have local organization with officers; certain rooms are allowed; restrictions are named; rules of conduct, etc.

As a rule meetings to be from 7 to 9 a. m., unless permission is given to extend this. Dancing or boisterous games not allowed or games of chance. No charge for the use of schools.

THREE THOUSAND RAISED FOR NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE

Racine will have a neighborhood house or social center as the result of the decision of the Central Association in that city to purchase a piece of property near the Northwestern depot. Three thousand has been subscribed toward the project and two thousand more are needed. It is believed that the proposed central plant would do better work than the two exisiting plants together and it is pointed out that while the change would help all lines of the work, it would be of especial value to the class work for boys and girls. The new plan would virtually give the city a girl's club as well as a boys' club. The boys 'club would be better taken care of than at present, and for the first time the association would be equipped to do as much for the girls as for the boys. In view of the large number of young people in that neighborhood it is estimated that fully twice as many boys and girls would be reached as at present.

MUNICIPAL WATER WORKS AT APPLETON REPORTS

Appleton, Wis.,—During the past year the municipal waterworks has paid out of its earnings the following amounts: To city in lieu of taxes, $5,057.15; attorney fees for litigation on getting the plant, etc., $1,616.92; for pavement taxes, $1,400; improvement at plant, $1,200; laid 6-inch main in the blocks, about $700 in addition to 1,200 feet of small main. In addition to laying the main old connections were replaced free of charge including goose necks which were put in at a cost of $2 each exclusive of the work required to install them.

PLAN TO USE TRACTORS FOR WORKING ON ROADS

Highway Commissioner Post and two members of the permanent highway committee of Sauk county have been visiting factories in different cities with the intention of buying kerosene tractors for use in the construction of good roads.

Last year it cost over $2,000 to move the machinery from job to job and Mr. Post was greatly inconvenienced in getting engines to run the crushers at various points, and was not always able to get teams when it was necessary to move. The new tractors will be used in hauling as well as to furnish powwer to operate the crushers.—Spring Green News.

MONROE TO LET CONTRACT FOR OIL FOR ITS STREETS

Monroe will soon contract for five tanks of asphaltum oil to be used for laying the dust on its streets this coming season. An option for five tanks more will be taken. The city will purchase two storage tanks that will be placed at the waterworks station where they can be filled from the tank cars. The tanks will hold eight to ten thousand gallons each, and one will be used to hold light and the other heavy oil.

WILL VOTE ON BOND ISSUE FOR BUILDING CITY HALL

The city of Lodi will hold an election on April 8 on the question of issuing bonds in the sum of $12,000, the process of the sale to be used exclusively for building a city hall containing a fire department, jail, council room, public library, and public hall.

Awards Well Contract.

The village of Waterford in Racine county has awarded a contract for the sinking of an artisan well and it is expected that the work will be commenced early in the spring. Recently the village voted $15,000 for a waterworks plant. Standpipe pressure is to be adopted and artesian well supply the water. It will not be less than 600 feet deep.

Removing Library Books.

Belvidere's new public library will be dedicated on Tuesday, February 12 and books are now being placed on its shelves. Book delivery at the the Ida public library closes this evening.

To Use More Oil.

The extensive use of oil for street sprinkling purposes on macadam thoroughfares will be recommended to the common council by the committee on light and water at the meeting of aldermen to be held tonight.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

GENERAL W. T. SHERMAN.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THIS is the birthday anniversary of General W. T. Sherman, born at Lancaster, Ohio, in 1820. General Sherman was a son of a judge of the supreme court of Ohio, who died leaving an honored name and a corpulent collection of debts. At the age of sixteen William was sent to West Point, where he was received with great cordiality by the upper classmen, who thought they recognized a soft mark. But as the first attempt to haze William Tecumseh resulted in crippling a large majority of the senior class and causing them to appear on dress parade in plaster of paris casts, the industry was soon abandoned.

General Sherman's first warfare was against the Seminole Indians in Florida, where he found it necessary to decease several obsterperous red brethren in order to get any sleep. A number of vigorous attempts were made to scalp him while he was looking in another direction, but he never lost any of his hair until he went up against the patent dandruff cure, which denuded him after the third application.

In 1861 General Sherman resigned his post as commandant of the Louisiana Military Academy and joined the Union army. His first engagement was at the battle of Bull Run, which resulted in a sound, six-ply licking for all concerned. After this battle, General Sherman expressed himself upon the conduct of the war in language that sounded like the Morse telegraph code and refused to participate until the war department borrowed a handful of brains.

After saving the day at Shiloh, carrying Missionary Ridge and relieving Knoxville, during which he earned several shoulder straps and the cognomen of "Uncle Billy," General Sherman began to roam around through Georgia with his army, which lived for a long time on green corn and watermelon pickles and caused great inconvenience to people who got in their way. Soon after the war he went abroad and showed the militia of effete Europe, which were pretty nearly all feet, how to "shoulder arms" without falling over backward. He died in New York in 1891, soon after celebrating his 71st birthday.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville, Feb. 7.—H. F. Silverthorn is the owner of a beautiful new car. He is the agent for the Ford car for this section and has sold three within a week.

Miss Maggie Leng of this village, was married Feb. 1st in Rockford to Paul Jensen, an Edgerton young man, employed in Janesville. The couple are visiting with the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leng.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Allen left on Thursday morning for Independence, Iowa, where Mr. Allen's mother lies at the point of death.

The merchants have now agreed to close the stores two evenings a week during February, instead of closing one evening each week, as in January. Tuesday and Thursday evenings the stores will be dark.

The removal of the depot is now an accepted fact. The building will be moved about sixty feet west along the line. As the matter now stands, the expense of removal will be borne by individual citizens, certain of whom, had subscribed about $200, and the company. The work will be begun when the weather allows.

Mr. C. H. Hemingway, formerly county superintendent of schools and well known in this village, has gone into the newspaper business, having uprchased a paper in Polo, Ill.

Mr. H. N. Wagley entertained his brother and wife from Iowa, over Sunday.

Dr. Sutherland was up from Janesville in consultation with Dr. Rowe, in an Orfordville case, Thursday.

"House Sisters."

The House-Sisters Association of Berlin was established not long ago to ennoble domestic service and to establish better relations between the employers and the employed. The association has a "Mother House" near the city, where girls are trained for services, situations being found for them when competent. Those in charge of the home keep in touch with the girls after they have gone out into the world to make their own way.

In the making of porcelain enameled sanitary ware in Great Britain and Germany leadless enamels are generally used and are there regarded as even superior in durability to the enamels in which lead is used. The result is that in neither Great Britain nor Germany is this industry looked upon as a dangerous one, while in the United States it ranks as the most dangerous, because of the character of the materials used and the almost total absence of measures to protect the workmen.

A Physician Cures His Wife Of Consumption

With A Simple Home Treatment. Book Fully Describing The Treatment Sent Absolutely Free To Any Lung Sufferer.

DR. W. H. KNIGHT of East Saugus, Mass., writes: "My wife was down with Consumption, when I ordered the Lloyd treatment. She was very weak from night sweats, cough, and in a feverish condition. I noticed a change for the better after ten day's treatment, and from that time on up to three months, when the cure was completed. The Lloyd Treatment kills the Tubercle Bacillus in the blood and tissue, and it is the only remedy so far discovered that will do this. It is a preventive as well as a cure. It should be used by those who are threatened, or those suffering from any form of Consumption. It can be truthfully said that for the cure and prevention of Consumption, it is the most wonderful treatment of the present age."

This is only one of hundreds of letters received from physicians and others reporting cases of consumption and lung trouble restored to health in all sections of the United States. We want to send every lung sufferer absolutely free the startling statements of Dr. W. H. Kiester of Dayton, Ohio, Dr. C. G. Pinckard of Kansas City, Mo., Dr. J. H. Ward of Troy, Mo., and many other who report results almost beyond belief, together with a valuable booklet on the cause, prevention and treatment of consumption and lung trouble.

If you are suffering from weakness, blood-spitting, pus-filled sputum, night sweats, chills, fever, loss of flesh, painful lungs, distressing cough, wasted body, loss of strength—write me today and I'll send you ABSOLUTELY FREE the sworn testimony of many who, after suffering with just such distressing symptoms, now state that they ARE CURED, strong, able to work, without ache or pain, happy, full of praise, after a few month's use of this simple home treatment. Send your name and address TODAY. JUDD Q. LLOYD, 7202 Lloyd Building, St. Louis, Mo.

The STOLEN SINGER

by MARTHA BELLINGER

COPYRIGHT 1911 THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"Of course, we've broken down?" he mildly inquired. Deep in his heart he was superstitiously thinking that he would let fate determine his next move; if there were obstacles in the way of his further quest, well and good; he would follow the Face no longer.

"If you'll wait just a minute—" the driver was saying, "until I get my kit out—"

But Hambleton, looking ahead, saw that the car had disappeared, and his mind suddenly veered.

"Not this time," he announced. "Here, the meter says four-twenty—you take this, I'm off." He put a five-dollar bill into the hand of the driver and started on an easy run toward the west.

He had caught sight of the smoke-stacks and masts in the near distance, telling him that the motor-car had almost, if not quite, reached the river. Such a vehicle could not disappear and leave no trace; it ought to be easy to find. Ahead of him flaring lights alternated with the steady, piercing brilliance of the incandescents, and both struggled against the lingering daylight.

A heavy policeman at the corner had seen the car. He pointed west into the cavernous darkness of the wharves.

"If she ain't down at the Imperial docks she's gone plump into the river, for that's the way she went," he insisted. The policeman had the bearing of a major-general and the accent of the city of Cork. Hambleton went on past the curving street-car tracks, dodged a loaded dray emerging from the dock, and threaded his way under the shed. He passed piles of trunks, and a couple of truckmen dumping assorted freight from an ocean liner. No motor-car or veiled lady, nor sound of anything like a woman's voice. Hambleton came out into the street again, looked about for another probable avenue of escape for the car and was at the point of bafflement, when the major-general pounded slowly along his way.

"In there, my son, and no nice place either!" pointing to a smaller entrance alongside the Imperial docks, almost concealed by swinging signs. It was plainly a forbidden way, and at first sight appeared too narrow for the passage of any vehicle whatsoever. But examination showed that it was not too narrow; moreover, it opened on a level with the street.

"If you really want her, she's in there, though what'll be to pay if you go in there without a permit, I don't know. I'd hate to have to arrest you."

"It might be the best thing for me if you did, but I'm going in. You might wait here a minute, Captain, if you will."

"I will that; more especially as that car was a stunner for speed and I already had my eye on her. I'd like to see you fish her out of that hole."

But Hambleton was out of earshot and out of sight. An empty passage smelling of bilge-water and pent-up gases opened suddenly on to the larger dock. Damp flooring with wide cracks stretched off to the left; on the right the solid planking terminated suddenly in huge piles, against which the water, capped with scum and weeds, splashed fitfully. The river bank, lined with docks, seemed lulled into temporary quietness. Ferry boats steamed at their labors farther up and down the river, but the currents of travel left here and there a peaceful quarter such as this.

Hambleton's gaze searched the dock and the river in a rapid survey. The dock itself was dim and vast, with a few workmen looking like ants in the distance. It offered nothing of encouragement; but on the river, fifty yards away, and getting farther away every minute, was a yacht's tender. The figures of the two rowers were quite distinct, their oars making rhythmical flashes over the water, but it was impossible to say exactly what freight, human or otherwise, it carried. It was evident that there were people aboard, possibly several. Even as Hambleton strained his eyes to see, the outlines of the rowboat merged into the dimness. It was pointed like a gun toward a large yacht lying at anchor further out in the stream. The vessel swayed prettily to the current, and slowly swung its dim light from the masthead.

"They've got her—out in that boat," said Hambleton to himself, feeling, while the words were on his lips, that he was drawing conclusions unwarranted by the evidence. Thus he stood, one foot on the slippery log siding of the dock, watching while the little drama played itself out, so far as his present knowledge could go. His judgment still hung in suspense, but his senses quickened themselves to detect, if possible, what the outcome might be. He saw the tender approach the boat, lie alongside; saw one sailor after another descend the rope ladder, saw a limp, inert mass lifted from the rowboat and carried up, as if it had been merchandise, to the deck of the yacht; saw two men follow the limp bundle over the gunwale; and finally saw the boat herself drawn up and placed in her davits. Hambleton's mind at last slid to its conclusion, like a bolt into its socket.

"They're kidnaping her, without a doubt," he said slowly. For a moment he was like one struck stupid. Slowly he turned to the dock, looking up and down its orderly but unprepossessing clutter. Dim lights shone here and there, and a few hands were at work at the farther end. The dull silence, the unresponsive preoccupation of whatever life was in sight, made it all seem as remote from him and from this tragedy as from the stars.

In fact, it was impersonal and remote to such a degree that Hambleton's practical mind halted yet an instant, in doubt whether there were not some plausible explanation. The thought came back to him suddenly that the motor-car must be somewhere in the neighborhood if his conclusion were correct.

On the instant his brain became active again. It did not take long, as a matter of fact, to find the car; though when he stumbled on it, turned about and neatly stowed away close beside the partitioning wall, he gave a start. It was such a tangible evidence of what had threatened to grow vague and unreal on his hands. He squeezed himself into the narrow space between it and the wall, finally thrusting his head under the curtains of the tonneau.

It was high and dry, empty as last year's cockleshell. Not a sign of life, not a loose object of any kind except a filmy thing which Hambleton found himself observing thoughtfully. At last he picked it up—a long, mist-like veil. He spread it out, held it gingerly between a thumb and finger of each hand, and continued to look at it abstractedly. Part of it was clean and whole, dainty as only a bit of woman's finery can be; but one end of it was torn and twisted and stretched out of all semblance to itself. Moreover, it was dirty, as if it had been ground under a muddy heel. It was, in its way, a shrieking evidence of violence, of unrighteous struggle. Hambleton folded the scarf carefully, with its edges together, and put it in his pocket.

Jimmy's actions from this time on had an incentive and a spirit that had before been lacking. He noted again the number of the car, and returned to the edge of the dock to observe the yacht. She had steamed up river a little way for some reason known only to herself, and was now turning very slowly. She was but faintly lighted and would pass for some pleasure craft just coming home. But Jim knew better. He could, at last, put two and two together. He would follow the Face—indeed, he could not help following it. In him had begun that divine experience of youth—of youth essentially, whether it come in early years or late—of being carried off his feet by a spirit not himself. He ran like a young athlete down the dock to the nearest workman, evolving schemes as he went.

The dock-hand apathetically trundled a small keg from one pile of freight to another, wiped his hands on his trousers, took a dry pipe out of his pocket, and looked vacantly up the river before he replied to Hambleton's question.

"Queer name—Jane Dark they call her."

It was like pulling teeth to get information out of him, but Jim applied the forceps.

The yacht had been lying out in the river for two weeks or more, possibly less; belonged to foreign parts; no one thereabouts knew who its owner was; nor its captain; nor its purpose in the harbor of New York. At last, quite gratuitously, the man volunteered a personal opinion. "Slippery boat in a gale—wouldn't trust her."

Hambleton walked smartly back, taking a look both at the yacht and the motor-car as he went. The yacht's nose pointed toward the Jersey shore; the car was creeping out of the dock. As he overtook the machine, he saw that it was in the hands of a mechanic in overalls and jumper. In answer to Hambleton's question as to the owner of the car, the mechanic told him pleasantly to go to the devil, and for once the sight of a coin failed to produce any perceptible effect. But the major-general, waiting half a block away, was still in the humor of giving fatherly advice. He welcomed Jim heartily.

"That's a hole I ain't got no use for. 'Ow'd you make out?"

"Well enough, for all present purposes. Can you undertake to do a job for me?"

"If it ain't nothing I'd have to arrest you for, I might consider it," he chuckled.

"I want you to go to the Laramie Club and tell Aleck Van Camp—got the name?—that Hambleton has gone off on the Jeanne D'Arc and may not be back for some time; and he is to look after the Sea Gull."

"Hold on, young man; you're not going to do anything out of reason, as one might say?"

"Oh, no; not at all; most reasonable thing in the world. You take this money and be sure to get the message to Mr. Van Camp, will you? All right. Now tell me where I can find a tug-boat or a steam launch, quick."

"O'Leary, down at pier X—2—O has launches and everything else. All right, my son, Aleck Van Camp, at the Laramie. But you be good and don't drown yourself."

This last injunction, word for word in the manner of the pert Edith, touched Jimmy's humor. He laughed ringingly. His spirit was like a chime of bells on a week-day.

The hour which followed was one that James Hambleton found it difficult to recall afterward, with any degree of coherence; but at the time his movements were mathematically accurate, swift, effective. He got aboard a little steam tug and followed the yacht down the river and into the harbor. As she stood out into the roads and began to increase her speed, he directed the captain of the tug to steam forward and make as if to cross her bows. This would make the pilot of the yacht angry, but he would be forced to slow down a trifle. Jim watched long enough to see the success of his maneuver, then went down into the cuddy which served as a cabin, took off his clothes, and looked to the fastenings of his money belt. Then he watched his chance, and when the tug was pretty nearly in the path of the yacht, he crept to the stern and dropped overboard.

BY WALT MASON

Just a year ago McCarty, that huge pugilistic party, was so badly up against it that he had no place to sleep; with his mentor, Bill McCarney he relied on bounce and blarney for a share of soup and sinkers, but he didn't mope or weep. "Fortune doubtless is a smarty," argued empty-luth McCarty, "and she hands around her favors in a dippy, dizzy way, but she's bound at last to notice any man who not a goat is, who pursues her still, untiring, chasing her day after day. Though my countenance she's soaking, when she sees I take it joking, she'll relent and hand me posies, where she hands me brick-bats now; and some day you'll see me splurging, from obscurity emerging, with a bundle in my breeches and a wreath upon my brow." Thus, with optimism hearty spake the great and good McCarty, and we've seen him leave the gutter for a high and rich estate; in his need he learned to hustle; now he ranks with Pastor Russell, Laura Libbey, J. G. Cannon, and the others truly great. Thus we see, O gentle reader, that the man who's no seceder, when he hears the call of Duty, or of Fortune seldom fails; like so many earnest thinkers he'll forsake the soup and sinkers, for a diet rich and gorgeous, princely pies and toasted quails.

The mother of a family of seven children, Mrs. G. Justus, of Jersey City, says she gives Father John's Medicine to all of them when they are run down in health or have a cold or cough. The picture shows Mrs. Justus and her children. In her letter she also says: "About five years ago I was taken with a very severe cough and was just about giving up hope of ever recovering, when a friend told my husband about Father John's Medicine. I tried it and I felt better at once. My husband has had colds on his chest, and whenever one of these comes on he always takes Father John's Medicine. We always recommend it to everybody." (Signed) Mr. and Mrs. G. Justus and family of seven children.

Remember that Father John's Medicine cures colds and all throat and lung troubles, because it gives the weakened system strength to ward off disease. It is a pure food medicine, free from alcohol and dangerous drugs. Get it today.

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

THE COMPACT

To die was not their full intent; They would have, tho', in any event.

Though they had only been engaged four years, they felt quite bitter towards each other, in spite of the fact that they tried conscientiously to conceal it.

"Your high collars strike me funny," she told him in a strained voice, that she tried in vain to keep impersonal.

"They're no funnier than the way you've been fixing your hair recently," he replied evenly. "Ha, ha! they're no funnier than that!"

Silence reigned for a moment. After its brief reign she spoke.

"William," she said, "we must trace the tooth—face the truth. I fear we are seeing too much of each other. No vulgar jests about bathing suits, please. I feel that we should separate for a year. If, during that time, our old feelings surge back, I will listen to the wedding ring."

"For a year," he said. And, putting his cane on his head and swinging his hat in his emotion, he departed in his auto.

In an effort to forget, they went far, in different directions. At the end of three days, finding themselves unable to eat, drink, smoke or be merry, they turned and rushed towards each other. But, while only a day's journey separated them, they both suddenly keeled over and died of broken hearts. And the moral is: Stick to it, for the worst is yet to come.

HE WAS VERY CARELESS

Never brushed his coat. Carried around a great lot of dandruff with him. One day a friend told him of Hall's Hair Renewer. He talked with his doctor about it. Then used it. Now his scalp is clean and healthy. No dandruff. No falling hair. No danger of staining the hair, either.

RESULTS THAT REMAIN

Are Appreciated by Janesville People.

Thousands who suffer from backache and kidney complaint have tried one remedy after another, finding only temporary benefit. This is discouraging, but there is one kidney medicine that has earned a reputation for lasting results and there is plenty of proof of its merit right here in Janesville.

Here is the testimony of one who used Doan's Kidney Pills years ago, and now makes her testimony even stronger.

Mrs. Joseph Gower, 302 Eastern Ave., Janesville, Wis., says: "The benefit I had from Doan's Kidney Pills when I used them some years ago has been permanent. I willingly confirm my former endorsement of this remedy. I was afflicted with kidney complaint for several weeks and was feeling miserable in every way when a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co. and the contents of three boxes rid me of my trouble. I never fail to advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills when I hear anyone complaining of weak kidneys."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, February 8, 1873.—George R. Curtis died yesterday afternoon, at his residence in the fourth ward, in the forty-third year of his age. His disease was bronchial consumption and for months past it has been evident that he must shortly yield to its effects. Therefore his death, yesterday occasioned no surprise, though the expectation of its presence does no tend to assuage the grief of the visation entailed upon relatives and friends.

George Kastner was alone in the mill when his hand was torn off and was working in the uper part of the mill at that time. After the accident had occurred he went in the lower part of he building, shut the water gates and started for the doctor's office, after carefully locking the mill door and placing the key in his pocket. Kastner did not realize the extent of his misfortune. It seemed to him, he said, that one of his fingers was partly crushed. He left three fingers, his thumb and the larger portion of the palm of his hand in the machinery in the upper room when he went down stairs to shut down the gates.

Officer Smith took a man to jail this afternoon for drunkenness who said he was on his way from Chicago to Minnesota to take charge of the university of that state. He gave his name as Mason, and when he was found here yeserday afternoon he was well dressed, but he had sold his overcoat to buy whiskey with, and when taken by the officer was about to offer a mortgage on the Minnesota University for more money. His trial will be held Monday.

A justice of peace from the town of Avon is languishing in jail for refusing to pay damages adjudged by a brother justice as a recompense for depredations by the prisoner's cattle.

Evening Things Up.

"Takes us some time to train a girl," remarked the head of the large department store. "And then you lose a lot of girls through marriage." "Yes; but things even up. A lot of girls get tired of their husbands and come back to us."

Economy Due to Science.

When sugar was made from beets it took about twenty tons of beets to produce one ton of sugar; now it requires but six tons, due to scientific breeding of the beets.

Pa Knows Why.

"Pa, why is it that dentists call their offices dental parlors?" "Because they are drawing rooms, my son."

Stop That Cough In A Minute
Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be cured internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by perculation from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It cures a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. Pfenig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist. Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.
